FARMER'S SCARBORO SERGES.

The price is 10½d per yard, and the colourings are Navy, Prune, Grenat, Brown, Olive, and other choice winter shades. Prompt cash only.

The excellent assortment of French Merinos, for which we are each season famous, is this winter rendered more attractive by the addition of many new colourings. Our noted Cloths at 2s 3d are now in full assortment. We have also some choice French Cashmeres at 2s 6d and 3s 6d; some Indian Cashmeres at 3s 3d; Satin Cashmeres at 5s 6d; and a varied assortment of New Cloths, in fashionable colourings, for evening wear. BONNETS, BLACK SILKS, 6s to 20s.

BLACK DUCHESSE SATIN, 6s 6d to 21s.

COLOURED GROS GRAIN SILKS, 2s 11d, 4s 6d, 4s 11d.

INDIAN BROCHE SILK, ÆSTHETIC COLOURINGS.

BLACK SILK.
There is no article in a draper's stock respecting which less is known by the wearers than Black Silk, and there is no article in which deception is so easy, and in which adulteration is more practised by unscrupulous manufacturers. Very few vendors of Black Silk really know what they are selling, while, to some others, the passing profit is too great a temptation to withstand, and consequently the public, wittingly and unwittingly, are deceived daily in the purchase of this article. As far as we are concerned our transactions in silk are of such magnitude as to leave no excuse for being deceived in its purchase, and self-interest forbids us to attempt to deceive our customers. We recommend as pure unweighted silk, the cloths we are now showing at 2s 6d per yard, 10,000 yards in stock; at 2s 11d per yard, 12,000 yards in stock; at 3s 11d and upwards to 9s 6d per yard, at which prices we have 50,000 yards. We quote prompt cash prices only.
FARMER and CO.

TAILOR-MADE ULSTERS FOR LADIES.
A splendid assortment just to hand, ex P. and O. steamer Clyde. In each of these garments the cut and finish has been most carefully studied so as to produce a really excellent fit. Tailor-made Ulsters for Ladies are now very much preferred throughout the United Kingdom to the ordinary make, and there is little doubt that such will be the case in Sydney as soon as their manifest superiority becomes better known. Prices are the lowest for prompt cash. FARMER and CO.

MANTLE DEPARTMENT.
Plenty of variety in this department. Numberless new styles. Might fill a column by merely reciting the distinguishing names. We are not going to do this, however, for divers reasons. It takes too much time, and unless we elaborate description the public isn't a bit better informed as to the character of goods we are showing. We wish to note, however, that, as far as our judgment goes, this coming season's assortment is right in every respect. Right in price; we never offered better value. Right in quality; we have carefully excluded all common goods. Right in style, texture, trimmings, and all that, as we have spared no labour to make it so. We quote Ladies' Ulsters, 10s 6d to 42s; Children's Ulsters, 5s 9d to 35s; Ladies' Cashmere Jackets, 10s 6d to 42s; Ladies' Black Cloth Jackets, light textures, 21s to 42s; Ladies' Cloth Dolmans, heavy, and well trimmed, 29s 6d to 6 guineas; Ladies' Silk Jackets, trimmed fur, 49s 6d to 57s 6d; Children's Cloth Jackets, 6s 6d to 30s. These are prompt cash prices. We do not entertain credit. FARMER and CO.

FRENCH MILLINERY.
We have just marked off a most choice assortment of French Millinery, which we ask our lady patrons to inspect, if possible, this morning. We say this morning for first choice. The styles are each unique, and the colourings æsthetic, embracing as well Myrtle Greens, Peacock Blues, Terra Cotta, and Venetian Reds, Dead-leaf Browns, Gold, Olive, and Sage Greens, Black, &c., &c. Prices are as usual—the lowest for prompt cash.
FARMER and CO.

FARMER'S GUINEA LONGCLOTHS.
The sale of these really excellent Calicos continues to increase at a rate really astonishing. The output for the present month has already trebled that of March, 1881, evidence of the strongest kind of the public appreciation of these cloths. One Guinea per piece, prompt cash. FARMER'S only.

RAILWAY RUGS, HALF-A-GUINEA.
People have been buying up our half-guinea Railway Rugs with an avidity which plainly shows they know what they are about. We quote 15s as the lowest price these rugs can be matched at in any retail store in the city, and we know we are not far out. The price in most wholesale stores is 12s. Here is an undeniable saving of 4s 6d in an expenditure of 15s, equivalent to 30 per cent. And, mark you, this saving may be accomplished proportionately in any railway rug up to 84s purchased in our establishment. Is not our cash system a real unmistakable benefit to ready-money buyers? FARMER and CO.

JUST AS YOU PLEASE.
"FARMER'S, by all means, my dear, if you can buy there to best advantage. I merely provide the money, you make the selections. Only, bear in mind, I stipulate for no more drapers' quarterly accounts."

AUSTRIAN CHAIRS.
Our first shipment of these goods DIRECT from the manufacturer's, Thonet, is now to hand; and we take the earliest opportunity to announce that we have REDUCED THE PRICE OF EVERY ARTICLE TO A FIGURE LOWER THAN THEY WERE EVER SOLD AT IN SYDNEY BEFORE. This announcement will be hailed with satisfaction by the trade generally; and the public who pay ready money (for we haven't any business interest in the public who do not) will possibly bear it in mind when about to purchase. FARMER and CO.

COON TAIL DUSTERS.
A great necessity supplied. Ladies never found a duster but defaced their pianos, mirrors, and furniture before the Coon Tail Dusters were introduced. Try one and you will never use any other; price 1s 6d prompt cash. By the way, we had almost forgotten to announce that we have reduced still further the price of Hartshorn's spring rollers, and are now selling the best and largest size at 1s 9d each. FARMER and CO.

VELOUR DE L'INDE CURTAINS.
Truly, the most marvellous textile production of modern time. A curtain, in which the much sought Indian colourings, at present so fashionable in London æsthetic circles, are perfectly blended. Equal in effect to the richest designs in silk and wool tapestry, with a softness of texture capable of the most delicate draping, this really artistic curtain is certain to become a special favourite in the best Australian drawing-rooms and boudoirs; price, 27s 6d per pair, prompt cash. HALF-GUINEA SPECIALTIES for Gentlemen. Not for gentlemen to whom it is a matter of supreme indifference what they pay for any article of dress, but for those who have to economize, who are obliged to make ends meet; and to those also, who, while not being called on to exercise a strict economy, do it for its own sake. It is such we invite to notice these items. FARMER and CO.

THE HALF-GUINEA SACS—A SPECIALTY and one of the most notable. Made in our own factory from nice light Scotch Tweeds, all due economy has been exercised in their production. They fit well, look well, wear well; are good for office wear, as a smoking jacket, as a knockabout coat; would do well for fishing or shooting, as they are of that soft tweed that will not break. We can find no fault with their colour, and their price is half-a-guinea, prompt cash.
FARMER and CO.

ANOTHER HALF-GUINEA SPECIALTY.
This time, one dozen of Gentlemen's Fine Irish Cambric Handkerchiefs for half-a-guinea. We know hundreds of gentlemen who leave the purchase of these items to their wives. And hundreds of wives from day to day pay 15s and 18s per dozen for no better handkerchiefs than these. They buy on credit, only that, and nothing more. FARMER and CO.

YET ANOTHER.
Three Gentlemen's White Shirts for half-a-guinea. Also, a specialty. If the value here is not unequalled, then buy no more shirts in our warehouse. You may pay any price you like, from 5s to 8s 6d, for goods of similar quality in credit shops. You pay us prompt cash, remember, but look what you save.

THE CONDITION OF THE THEATRES IN SYDNEY.

The following report of the Mayor with respect to the theatres of Sydney was brought up at the meeting of the City Council yesterday:—

"I have the honour to report to the Council that in consequence of public attention having been recently directed to the important question of the general construction of buildings used as places of public resort, and more especially to the means provided for securing the general safety in cases of fire and other causes for panic, I have, in conjunction with the City Architect, City Health Officer, and Inspector of Nuisances, commenced an inspection of the public edifices in this city, where large congregations of people are in the habit of assembling. Our first inquiry was in the direction of the theatres of Sydney. This section of our investigation has been so far completed as to admit of my submitting to you the result of our inspection of these buildings, giving in detail descriptions of the several portions of the theatres to which the public are admitted, as well as of the parts occupied for the purpose of performances, and showing what provisions are made for ingress and egress, ventilation, and sanitary convenience. To this I have added certain suggestions, which I think should be adopted for securing the safety and convenience of the public visiting these places of amusement, together with an interesting extract from the 'Builder' of an article on 'Public Safety in Theatres.' It does not appear to be in the power of the Council to adopt or enforce any regulations as to the arrangements or management of theatres already built in the city, but it is hoped that by some special enactment, or by some action on the part of the Government, provision may be made for dealing with a matter which so seriously affects the safety, health, and comfort of the community.

"QUEEN'S THEATRE.

"This theatre is entered from York-street, having separate entrances to the dress circle, stalls, and pit. The stage is reached by a side passage. The dress circle entrance consists of a small vestibule with a steep flight of steps (constructed of wood, and covered with oilcloth), at the top of which is a landing, and a smaller flight of narrow steps, branching from each side, and landing in the circle. These steps, which constitute the exits, would be immediately choked if any panic occurred, as they are completely inadequate for the dispersion of the occupants of this portion of the theatre, assuming the dress circle to be ordinarily full. The ventilation of this part of the house is very deficient and ill-advised. It is so arranged that in the event of the adjoining buildings catching fire the smoke or flames would be drawn inside the theatre. It consists of an opening or aperture about 12 inches deep, at the level of the ceiling, extending nearly the entire width of the theatre, and is filled in apparently with iron fret work, so that it creates a direct communication between the theatre and the roof of the buildings. A small window in the south wall is also used as a means of ventilation, but cannot answer the purpose. It looks into an old dilapidated wooden balcony (belonging to the adjoining premises), and can only serve to convey the vitiated air, smoke, or fire into the building. The pit and stall entrances lead to one corner of their respective parts of the house, and are so narrow that it is at once apparent they would be immediately choked if any rush was made to escape fire or otherwise. The building appeared extremely dirty, and the air we breathed while in the premises was anything but refreshing. As will be seen, the ingress and egress to this theatre are insufficient and exceedingly bad, and we cannot point out too strongly the danger likely to arise in endeavouring to escape out of the building in the event of any panic or consternation. The stage is overcrowded with scenery, and no provisions are made in the case of fire. We were informed that should fire occur, water could be obtained from the main in the street, but our informant evidently overlooked the fact that in such a case the exits would be choked with the public endeavouring to get out, and thereby cutting off the chances of extinguishing the fire. The dressing-rooms in connection with the stage are so situated that any smoke issuing from the stage would easily suffocate the occupants of them in a short time, and the exits from the stage (through the back yard of the adjoining premises) are so narrow and ill-constructed that any falling scenery would immediately block them up and create utter confusion. The space underneath the stage is utilized as a storeroom, and is packed with old scenery and effects of years standing. In this storeroom are small windows looking into the small back yards connected with dwelling-houses in Clarence-street. These windows are unglazed, the glass having been broken (it is presumed) by the children or occupants of the dwelling-houses abovementioned. The windows referred to, are only about three or four feet above the yards adjoining, and for the safety of the 'valuable storage' contained under the stage, iron bars are placed in the window openings. We were much impressed with the imminent danger of these windows, especially as the broken panes were allowed to remain, and more particularly at the present time of the year, when 'crackers' and other fireworks are so prevalent. In this case there is nothing to prevent a cracker or other lighted material being thrown through the windows referred to into the 'debris' which is accumulated in this storeroom. This room is very seldom visited, and consequently anything smouldering would not be observed until a good hold was obtained, when a consternation would be created, and something serious would inevitably follow. The situation of the building is such (immediately surrounded by other buildings) that to have proper ingress and egress, the adjoining properties would have to be secured, and to make the theatre safe from accidents arising from insufficient exits, would involve the entire remodelling of the whole building. The structure itself is very old and dilapidated, the back walls particularly exhibiting signs of decay by the joints of the brickwork fretting away.

"THE OPERA HOUSE

is situated at the corner of King and York streets; the dress circle entrance being in York-street, while the stalls and Pitt entrances (both separate) are in King-street. The entrance to the dress circle is up an extremely awkward wooden staircase, constructed in such a manner that, in the event of a panic, accidents, and perhaps loss of life, would be inevitable through the formation of the landings. The excited crowd rushing down the stairs would block at the second landing, not thinking to turn back down a lower flight, and in all probability would jump from this landing into the vestibule below. This is a serious defect in the construction of the staircase, and should be remedied. The entrance doors open inwards, and are only secured by the doormat, which at any moment might be torn up. The exit from the dress circle of this theatre, as in the theatre previously described, is inadequate in cases of emergency. The stalls and pit are also defective in this respect. Originally, two escape doors, with steps in area on the southern side, existed, which conducted the public through passages under the theatre into the street. These appear to have been converted into other purposes. The entrance to the stage is by a narrow passage under the theatre from King-street, and up a small wooden staircase. The precautionary measures adopted in this theatre to check any fire consist of tank, waterpipe with nozzle and nose, on one side of the stage; but whether it is for ornament or use it is difficult to determine. This building, although not entirely surrounded with other buildings, is erected over shops, with one side facing King-street; so that no immediate direct exit can be obtained from any part of the theatre into the street, and consequently stairs, passages, and turning have to be resorted to, which always in crowded assemblages create confusion.

"THEATRE ROYAL.

"This is the principal theatre at present in Sydney, and is very often packed to the doors. The building itself is surrounded by other buildings; on the south side by shops facing King-street, on the west by a steam biscuit manufactory, the idea of which is not reassuring; on the north side by dwelling-houses, fronting Rowe-street (late Brougham-place), and on the east side by hotels and oyster saloons, with a small space reserved for the entrance to the dress circle. This entrance consists of a vestibule containing a wooden staircase to the dress circle, which leads to the corner of that part of the theatre, and is entirely insufficient for the quick exit of the occupants of that portion of the theatre as would be required in any case of emergency. The family circle is gained by a wooden staircase entered from a side passage, winding and extremely dangerous, and which is not sufficient exit for this part of the house. There is another exit by a similar staircase, but if taken advantage of would block up the exit from the stalls. The same remarks may be applied to the extra door in the pit opening into the vestibule to dress circle, which, by the way, judging of the manner it is fastened during a performance, would be difficult to open, and even then would block the exit from the 'dress circle.' The exits from the pit and stalls are entirely inadequate even when an ordinary audience is assembled, saving nothing of occasions when every spot is occupied to the very doors, which so often is the case. The spectacular performances which are now being played, introducing so much fire on the stage, must sooner or later, through some mishap, create a panic, when the evil of packing our theatres will be regretted too late. The exits, besides not being large, are all badly situated. The dressing and property rooms in connection with this theatre are of a very inflammable character. They are constructed of wooden framing, and covered with galvanized iron. Iron doors and bridges are provided to connect stage, but it is a question whether they would be of any use, as the openings would be required for exits off the stage. Pipes, tanks, and hose are provided in this theatre, but there is nothing to convince the public that they are always in working order. The sanitary arrangements in connection with this building are decidedly bad. The windows on the north side are sometimes opened for ventilation, when the whole of the effluvia from the urinals penetrate into the theatre, and is exceedingly disagreeable, saying nothing of its unsanitary effects. This theatre is remarkable for its overcrowding, and should any accident occur while the house is so packed, it can safely be asserted that life would be sacrificed.

"THE GAIETY THEATRE.

"This building was originally built for a music or lecture hall, and therefore its means of ingress and egress were not so much studied as the chances of a panic were less likely to occur. However, it is by far the most comfortable theatre in Sydney (although small), and the chances of getting out of the building are more reassuring than in any other place of amusement in the city. All the possible space in connection with this theatre is made available for escape. This, and the fact that the house is seldom overcrowded, creates confidence in the public mind, and consequently there is less fear of a consternation. The building is entered from Castlereagh-street, having a small vestibule with a passage up to the front portion of the house. The stalls are entered more immediately from the vestibule referred to, and the the gallery is entered by a staircase from a passage from Castlereagh-street. Escape doors are provided with narrow passages on each side of the building. Water is laid on with pipes, tanks, hose, &c., and these, we are informed, are always ready for immediate action. From what we observed every precaution appeared to be taken in the rooms under the stage so as to prevent accident. The auditorium is so planned as to accommodate the public comfortably without packing and the passage kept free, so that, as we observed before, a better chance is afforded for escape in case of panic. The most defective part of this theatre is the gallery, owing to the staircase and narrow passage, which would no doubt soon be blocked in the event of a consternation.

"THE VICTORIA HALL.

"This building is also situated in Castlereagh-street, and consists of a long hall with gallery at one end and the stage at the other. This building, as in other cases, is deficient of proper exits, and is overcrowded at times. A water-pipe with nozzle and hose is supplied to the stage, but the pipe is connected direct from the main, so that in the event of the water being turned off it would prove useless. No sanitary arrangements are made in connection with this theatre.

"It will therefore be seen from these crude descriptions that all the theatres in Sydney are so constructed on such sites that proper escape-doors on each side of the buildings are impracticable, and it also shows the greater necessity for having all appliances ready in case of emergency, and some guarantee in the form of inspectors, convincing the public that they are ready at any moment for action, so as to create confidence in the public mind and evade a chance of a panic. While regretting the fact of such a state of things existing, we can congratulate ourselves that any new building to be erected as a place of amusement for the public must be approved of under the City Improvement Act; and all the points which have been so vividly brought before the public by the late disastrous fires on the Continent as being necessary for the safety of the public will be rigidly enforced. Unfortunately, we have no control over buildings of that character which have been erected or commenced to be erected before the Act referred to came into operation, and therefore can only suggest what means should be adopted for the protection and safety of the public while in those buildings. 1. The different parts of the house, viz., pit, stalls, dress circle, gallery, and landing of stairs, to be supplied with proper water-pipes, nozzle and hose, with a man always stationed in case of need. 2. In different parts of the house, the words 'keep cool' should placarded in positions where they could be readily observed. 3. A banner or something of that description should always be ready to present to the audience from the stage with the words legibly printed thereon, 'No danger,' 'Keep your seats,' or to the like effect, as anyone appearing on the stage at a time of excitement and endeavouring to address the audience could not be heard. 4. Separate gas meters should be provided to the different parts of the building, so that total darkness would not be so likely to occur. 5. In addition to the gas lamps oil lamps should be used, especially at corners, in passages, and on staircases. 6. Escape-doors should be made at every point where practicable, and fastened with a small bolt at such a height that could easily be reached by any medium-sized person—the doors to open outwards. 7. That where escape-doors exist the audience should, if practicable, be compelled to leave the theatre by these doors after every performance, so as to become accustomed to them. 8. That proper passages should be provided in and about the audience in the different parts of the building, and always kept clear and free; or that the different parts of the theatre be licensed to contain a certain number only. This could be regulated by allotting a certain number of tickets to each pay office of the theatre, and when exhausted close the office. 9. That telegraphic or other improved means of communication be made between one or two fire engine stations and the different parts of the theatre, under control of an officer of the theatre. 10. All gas-jets and lights on the stage and the in flies to be encased with wire netting, to prevent any canvas or scenery coming in contact with the flames. 11. That a commission be formed, composed of competent men, to investigate each of the existing theatres in Sydney, and to specify what practical works are necessary for the safety of the public, and to have the works referred to completely carried out."

TRAMWAY EXTENSION ALONG THE PARRAMATTA ROAD.

A public meeting, convened by the Mayor of Burwood (Mr. W. Archer), in response to a requisition, was held at the Council-chambers, Burwood, last evening. The hour of meeting was announced as 8 o'clock, but the proceedings did not commence until three-quarters of an hour later, at which time not more than 40 persons were present. The Mayor presided; and after reading the advertisement calling the meeting, stated that he had received a letter of apology from Mr. W. H. Pigott, M.L.A., intimating his inability to attend owing to a prior engagement.

Mr. JOHN DAWSON said that before the first resolution was moved he wished to express his surprise that his name had been put at the head of the advertisement as the promoter of the meeting. He wished to say that, although he was in favour of the movement, he never dreamed of being considered the promoter.

The CHAIRMAN explained that the requisition had been signed by 25 gentlemen, and he put Mr. Dawson's name at the head of the list of those appearing in the advertisement because he was one of the most respected and one of the oldest residents of the borough. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. CROKER moved the first resolution,—"That, in the opinion of this meeting, it is desirable that a tramway should be constructed, to extend as far as Burwood-road, for the convenience of the inhabitants of Five Dock, Longbottom, and Concord." It was universally admitted that a tramway was necessary, as it would not only benefit Burwood, but Five Dock, and other places in the vicinity.

Mr. J. DAWSON seconded the resolution, and thought the extension of the tramway in the direction mentioned would be a great boon. He could easily conceive that Burwood, with its lovely air, would be the place above all others suitable for artizans and others who were now confined to Sydney, with its sewage and pestiferous air, and who would be able to get into a portion of the country where their health would be invigorated. He, for one, never knew what health was, comparatively speaking, until he came to Burwood, and there was no suburb more likely to attract inhabitants from Sydney. He had never known a day's illness since he had lived there, and bearing in mind the many delightful spots in the vicinity, it was highly desirable that these spots should be made more accessible than they were at present, so that artizans and others could establish homes along the road, to which they might get as speedily as possible. It might be said that the railway would run more or less in a parallel line with the tramway, but it must not be forgotten that there was a considerable distance between the Burwood-road and the line of rail. A man who was at his work all day was not in a condition, physically, to walk any distance to his home. He wanted to get to his residence as speedily as he could, and the railway did not offer sufficient facility to enable him to do so. He ought to be in a position to be set down almost at the door of his home. Whether the request of the meeting would be granted or not he did not know, but they ought to be favoured equally with other suburbs; and as it was proposed to bring the tramway line to Canterbury, he did not see why Burwood and surrounding localities should not be equally benefited.

The motion was unanimously agreed to.

Mr. BILLERWELL moved the second resolution,—"That a deputation be appointed, consisting of the Mayors of Burwood, Five Dock, and Ashfield, the Hon. S. H. Terry, M.L.C., and Messrs. W. H. Pigott and Henson, Ms.L.A., to further the object of the first resolution." Many of the residents living to the north of the Parramatta-road were as much as two miles from the railway, and as the population would increase, a tramway in that direction would be a great benefit, although it might not be necessary for the convenience of the people of Burwood.

Mr. P. JOHNSTONE seconded the resolution, which was agreed to.

A vote of thanks to the chairman brought the proceedings to a close.

THE TRAMWAYS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—As a constant traveller on the tramways, will you kindly give me sufficient space to make a few remarks?

Each motor is supplied with one or more sand-boxes; but on the first approach of anything like damp weather, when facing a hill, the wheels rush round and the tram is "stuck up." I take the trouble to ask the driver the cause. He tells me the pipes leading from the said boxes are too small and too curved, consequently they choke themselves and are useless. Now, why is this defect not remedied? It would cost very little, even supposing the boxes were shifted altogether and put in a more suitable position—instead of which the fireman has to run the sand through his fingers and drop it about two feet, the consequence being only a trifle falls on the rails, the remainder wasted.

Surely thousands of business men so travelling ought to be thought of; their time is very valuable, their engagements are important; without them how would the tramways pay?

Yours, &c.,
April 25. WAVERLEY.

A singular adaptation of the railway engine has just been made in Russia. Information having been given to the authorities at Alexandrovo, on the Polish frontier, that the locomotive of the express leaving that station for Warsaw had been ingeniously converted into a receptacle for smuggled goods, it was carefully examined during its sojourn at the station. Though nothing was found wrong, it was deemed advisable that a Custom-house official should accompany the train to its destination, where the engine furnace and boiler were emptied and deliberately taken to pieces. In the interior was discovered a secret compartment containing 123lb. of foreign cigars and several parcels of valuable silk. Several arrests were made, including that of the driver, but his astonishment at finding the engine to which he had so long been accustomed converted into a hardened offender against the laws was so genuine that he was released and allowed to return to his duties.

CITY COUNCIL.

The fortnightly meeting of the City Council was held yesterday morning, when the the Mayor (Mr. John Harris) and the following aldermen were present, viz.:—Aldermen Beare, Carter, Chapman, Davies, Dean, Fowler, Green, Hardie, Kippax, Lees, Meeks, Merriman, Moore, O'Connor, Palmer, Playfair, Taylor, and Withers.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

A report was read from the Mayor to the effect that Mr. John M'Elhone had been elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Alderman Edward Hordern.

A report from the Mayor, with respect to his inspection of the theatres, was read. It dealt with the Queen's Theatre, the Opera House, Theatre Royal, the Gaiety Theatre, and the Victoria Hall. The Mayor considered the ingress and egress to the Queen's Theatre insufficient, and that in the event of any panic arising in the building persons might endanger their lives whilst attempting to escape. The ventilation of the dress circle was considered ill-advised and very deficient. The building, the report stated, appeared extremely dirty, and the air was found to be anything but refreshing. With regard to the Opera House, the report stated that the means of egress from the dress circle, stalls, and pit would be found to be inadequate in cases of emergency. Similar fault was found with the modes of egress from the various parts of the Theatre Royal. It was also stated that the sanitary arrangements connected with this building are decidedly bad. With respect to the Gaiety Theatre, it is stated that this building is by far the most comfortable theatre in Sydney, and the chances of getting out of the building are more reassuring than any other place of amusement in this city, escape doors with narrow passages being provided on each side of the building, and waterpipes and other appliances being always ready for use in the event of fire. It was, however, considered, that the mode of exit from the gallery was defective. The Victoria Hall was considered deficient of proper means of exit. It was resolved that the report be printed, and that a copy of it be sent to the Government.

The finance committee's report, recommending the payment of sundry accounts, was adopted.

Petitions were presented in favour of kerbing and guttering for Belmore-street, and a lane in the rear; the extension of a water-main from Agar-street to Addison-road, Marrickville; the erection of a retaining wall in Burton-street; and action being taken for the abatement of a nuisance on premises in King-street; and also for the abatement of a nuisance arising from a sewer near Butler's steps. Walton Pell, contractor for timber cubes in George-street, and John Bird, contractor for kerbing and guttering, wrote applying that their contracts might be cancelled. The latter stated that he was unable to proceed owing to the scarcity of men. It was resolved to cancel the contracts, subject to the usual conditions, which provide for the forfeiture of the deposits made by each contractor.

The report of the Officer of Health (Dr. Dansey) for the month of March was laid upon the table. The report was as follows:—"I have the honour to report that during the past month no epidemic has appeared in the city, but there have been several cases of typhoid fever, especially in those parts of Sydney that are badly drained or situated low. In Victoria typhoid fever has broken out in a severe form, traceable to milk supplied from a dairy. In regard to the licensing of butchers' premises for slaughtering purposes, I would beg to draw your attention to several of my reports during the past few years, showing the evil likely to accrue unless most carefully watched. In the one dated dated June, 1875, I mentioned that out of 12,000 or 13,000 lambs sold in Sydney during the year, only 12 had been killed at the Abattoirs. In my report of August, 1875, I stated the danger of consumers buying diseased meat, as in private slaughter-houses there is no supervision by an inspector. Again in June, 1876, I speak of the Act being before Parliament for dealing with the adulteration of food, but I particularly mention the danger of diseased meat, as few buyers can tell the differences between good and bad—the only sign of disease that could meet the eye of a customer having been removed prior to being exposed for sale. In this report I again urge the appointment of a qualified inspector of butchers' shops in and around Sydney, as it is only at the Abattoirs that supervision is used to prevent diseased animals being killed for human food. On March 9, 1878, I drew attention to the difficulty experienced by butchers when suddenly called on by hotelkeepers to provide joints of meat for guests just arrived by steamer or rail, having to travel so many miles to the Abattoirs, perhaps to find the allotted space for killing occupied by others, and compelled to wait their turn. I then gave it as my opinion, in order to stop the wholesale secret slaughtering existing, that it was desirable that four eligible sites should be selected in different parts of the city where calves and lambs only might be killed, but if this was found inexpedient, the licensing of certain butchers' shops—but all animals kept for killing at these sites should be examined and passed as healthy by an inspector; and in May, 1880, I allude to the want of paving and proper drainage of the yards belonging to the butchers' shops, and that such shops should not be allowed in the city unless the premises are sufficiently large to carry on the business in a cleanly and wholesome manner. Many of the butchers' shops, &c., are at the present time totally unfit for the business."

In reply to Alderman Kippax, the MAYOR stated that no communication had been received from the Government with reference to the opening of Goulburn-street East.

Alderman DAVIES said before the general business was proceeded with, he would like to draw attention to the fact that a dangerous nuisance existed at the back of Marshall-street. The land was very low, and was a receptacle for all kinds of sewage and filth. During the warm weather the accumulation of rubbish had generated gases which occasioned fever and other disease.

Alderman PLAYFAIR said that he wished to say something with respect to the method by which the roads of the city were made and repaired. Some of the officers had recently paid a visit to Melbourne, but they did not seem to have derived much benefit from it. Any visitor from the other colonies who noticed the way in which the metal was laid down in George-street—one of the principal streets—would naturally come to the conclusion that no officers were employed to superintend the work. The metal was left for some days in such a manner as to cause horses to go lame. Then a man would be seen carting some mud, which was laid over the metal. Afterwards the water-cart would pass over the place, and the street would, with the mud which had been deposited and afterwards saturated with water, be brought into a most disgraceful condition. It appeared to him that the corporation men did their work without the supervision of the City Surveyor, at any rate he had never seen Mr. Mountain superintending the metalling of the road in George-street. He thought that a reformation was wanted. The council did not require a City Surveyor, who was simply a presiding or consulting officer, but wanted one who would go about and see what works were required, as well as superintend the men when carrying out works. The manner in which the repairing of George-street had been carried on for the last few weeks was quite disgraceful. Metal was laid upon the road, but proper blinding was not used. Instead of blinding, a lot of dirt was thrown over the metal, and the consequence was that when—as was the case on Monday, there was half-an-hour's rain—an expenditure of some thousands of pounds had to be incurred in cleaning the streets. He thought that the sooner a fresh start was made the better it would be.

Alderman TAYLOR referred to the way in which metal had been laid down in another street. The metal was laid down in such a way that it all got washed into the harbour. He qutie agreed with Alderman Playfair that something ought to be done to bring about a better mode of repairing the streets.

Alderman GREEN said that the Government had taken 15 months to make Oxford-street, and yet when there was a little rain on Monday it was in a very bad condition.

Alderman MOORE said that Mr. Mountain's time had been occupied in the preparation of reports.

Alderman WITHERS referred to the damage done to Cook Ward by the recent heavy storm. The metal was lying upon the roads without any blinding, and some of the approaches to Moore Park were in a most disgraceful condition. Really, the ward which he represented was in such a disgraceful condition that he felt inclined to resign the position which he held.

Alderman O'CONNOR admitted that the streets were not as they would like to have them; but he thought it was a mistake to catch everything on the hop. Melbourne had a wonderful advantage over this city. The streets of Sydney had never been properly made, and therefore they could never be kept in a proper state of repair. However, the complaints of Alderman Playfair would be attended to.

The debate on the motion for the rescision of the resolution of the council, passed on the 14th March last, ordering that certain butchers' slaughtering licenses be issued, was resumed.

Alderman CHAPMAN contended that the Corporation Act empowered the council to license places within the city, at which pigs, calves, and sheep might be slaughtered; that in accordance with such Act the Corporation had framed regulations which acted as an inducement for butchers to erect slaughter-houses. The resolution provided for the cancellation of licenses issued since the 14th March; he would like to know what was to be done with the licenses issued prior to that date. If they cancelled one license, they ought to cancel all (Hear, hear.) Inasmuch as the council had, by holding out inducements to butchers, caused them to incur great expense in the erection of slaughter-houses, and the public now cried out for the abolition of those slaughter-houses, he thought the public ought to give the owners substantial compensation. He wished it to be understood that he was not one of those who would not give way to the demands of public opinion, as he believed that in nine cases out of ten public opinion was right.

Alderman PLAYFAIR suggested that as no report had been brought up with respect to the disposal of the offal from the slaughter-houses, the debate should be adjourned until such report had been submitted.

Alderman KIPPAX then moved, and Alderman PLAYFAIR seconded, an amendment that the debate be adjourned.

Alderman FOWLER thought that as an inducement had been held out to the builders to erect slaughter-houses, it was only fair that they should receive compensation.

The Town Clerk read the report of the City Health Officer with respect to slaughter-houses.

Alderman O'CONNOR said that the Government had decided to provide additional accommodation at Glebe Island for slaughtering, but such accommodation had not yet been provided. He thought the debate ought to be adjourned until the necessary alterations at Glebe Island had been effected. He did not think the council would be guilty of such commercial barbarity, such intellectual barbarity, as to carry the motion before the necessary accommodation had been provided at Glebe Island.

The amendment for the adjournment of the debate was then put and negatived.

Alderman LEES, in reply, said every gentleman present admitted that the slaughtering of small stock in the city was not conducive to health. Then he did not see why four or five butchers should be allowed to have a monopoly of slaughtering to the detriment of 19 or 20 other butchers, whose applications for licenses had been rejected, simply because their places were smaller and situated where the population was denser. Alderman Playfair had twitted him with having taken that action to please public opinion, but as a matter of fact public opinion was not expressed until after he (Alderman Lees) had taken action. Even had there been an expression of public opinion upon the subject previously, he would have considered it to be his duty to follow public opinion in whatever direction might best serve the interests of the public. Another reason why they should prevent the slaughtering of small stock in the city was to be found in the fact that on one day during Easter week 13 lambs were condemned as unfit for food, and contemporaneously with that condemnation Mr. Seymour prosecuted persons for having hanging in their shops lambs which were in such a wretched condition that they looked more like skinned cats than anything else. Independently of the 13 lambs to which he had just alluded, it was known that calves, cows, and pigs after they had been condemned were taken away, but nobody seemed to know where. The inference was that they were taken away and slaughtered.

Alderman PLAYFAIR rose and said he considered that the remarks of Alderman Lees were an insult to the citizens. He appealed to the Mayor.

The MAYOR considered Alderman Lees quite in order, and that he was not making use of remarks which were insulting to the citizens.

Alderman LEES said that he was not saying anything haphazard. The subject was an important one as affecting the interests of the city, and he wished to have a division taken. The only difference between the cases of Aldermen O'Connor and Playfair and the 19 who had been unsuccessful with their applications was that the places of the former were larger than those of the latter.

The original motion was then submitted, and some unseemly proceedings followed. Alderman Merriman held up his hand with the ayes when Alderman Playfair caught hold of his arm while the Mayor was counting the votes. The Mayor said that Alderman Playfair was playing tricks. The latter said that Alderman Merriman was making a mistake, as he did not intend to vote with the ayes. The Mayor replied that Alderman Playfair had no right to play tricks like that, and the latter rejoined, "My honour is as good as yours." The Mayor: "Well, that is questionable." Alderman Merriman said it was true that he had made a mistake. The Mayor said: "Well, I'll put the resolution again; but no tricks this time." Alderman Merriman again held up his hand with the ayes, and the Mayor, looking towards Alderman Playfair, said, "There he is again." The motion was carried.

A division was taken, with the following result:—Ayes (12): Beare, Carter, Chapman, Davies, Dean, Hardie, Lees, Meeks, Moore, Palmer, Taylor and Withers. Noes (4): Kippax, Merriman, O'Connor, and Moore.

Alderman TAYLOR said he hoped that Alderman Lees, the mover of the motion, would table a resolution providing that compensation shall be granted to such butchers as have gone to the expense of building slaughtering-houses, and whose licenses have now been cancelled.

Alderman LEES said that was a matter which he intended to deal with in the Finance Committee.

In accordance with the recommendation of the sewerage committee, it was resolved that the nine-inch stoneware sewer in George-street be extended from Mr. R. P. Abbott's to Park-street; that the 12-inch sewer leading from the south-west corner of Bathurst and George streets to Druitt-street be altered and re-laid; that a duplicate stoneware sewer be laid along George-street West, under the footways, from Harris-street to Wattle-street; and that stoneware sewers and stormwater channel be constructed from Taylor-street to the new Government sewer, at the joint cost of the Government, the Paddington Municipal Council, and the City Corporation.

In accordance with the recommendations of the improvement committee, the following works were authorized:—Pottinger-street, kerb and gutter, pitching redressed, tar metalling; George-street, between Hunter and Argyle-street, wood paving; Sussex-street North, gully shaft constructed; Sussex-street North, opposite the mill, kerb and gutter; rough stone dyke at the Depot, Kent-street North; George-street, from Hay-street to the police station, paved with wood; kerbing and guttering in Cleveland-street, between Elizabeth and Crown streets; Harris-street, between William Henry and Quarry streets, kerb and gutter; Kirk-street, forming, ballasting, and blinding; Kirk-street, kerb and gutter; kerbing and guttering in Darling-street, Darlinghurst, upon condition that all encroachments are previously removed.

On the motion of Alderman DAVIES, it was decided to erect a lamp in Dowling-street, at the south end of Stewart's buildings.

Alderman MEEKS moved,—That, in accordance with the 17th section of the City of Sydney Improvement Act, this council approves of the proposed deviations from the requirements of the Act in the construction of or addition to buildings belonging to the undermentioned parties:—C. Goodwin, workshop, Valentine-lane; J. Hawksford, workshop, Market-street; Joseph Griffiths, workshop, Castlereagh-street; J. M'Clurkin, workshop, Fig-street; William Day, store, near Edward-street, Pyrmont; Briscoe, Drysdale, and Co., store, Pitt-street; Goodlet and Smith, store, 493, George-street; James Turner, extension of balcony, 9, Bligh-street; T. W. Hall, shed, Kent-street; J. Mackintosh and Co., wood and iron shed, Crown and Pyrmont Bridge roads; Thomas Rowe, piers for underpinning at Messrs. Harris and Ackman's Auction Mart, Pitt-street; Thomas Rowe, piers for under-pinning at Messrs. Hoffnung's premises, Pitt-street; D. J. Monk, closets of wood and iron, Agar-street, off Kent-street.

Plans and sections were adopted showing the proposed permanent levels of Harris-street, from Bowman-street to the water, and Cecil-place, between Abercrombie-street and Myrtle-street.

On the motion of Alderman MEEKS, it was resolved,—"That his Worship the Mayor, and Aldermen J. D. Young, Dean, Palmer, Lees, Kippax, Beare, Carter, and Meeks, be appointed as representatives of the council at the intended Municipal Conference on the matter of gas supply to the city of Sydney and its suburbs."

Alderman WITHERS moved,—"That a by-law be made preventing any public or private vehicle, or persons on horseback, from passing any tram-car or motor at other than a walking pace whilst said car or motor is stopping to take up or put down passengers in the streets of Sydney." The motion was, after discussion, negatived.

On the motion of Alderman MOORE, it was resolved,—"That the sandhill between the road to the cricket ground and the loopline to the agricultural grounds, and the sand on the east side of the waterhole, Moore Park, be removed."

Alderman MEEKS moved,—"That the claim of Mr. J. T. Neale, for compensation for injury to property, George-street West, be referred to arbitration."

The motion was agreed to.

Tenders were then opened for the purchase of £30,000 worth of cattle sale yard debentures. The offers of Mr. Cape for 1000 at £110 10s.; Robert Cox for 10,000 at £110 5s.; and Josiah Mullens for the balance (19,000) at £109 5s. 6d., were accepted.

Tenders were also opened for laying water pipes and fittings at the stock saleyard, Homebush. That of Mr. J. F. Overther at £296 was accepted.

CORPORATION DEBENTURES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In a sub-leader of your issue of the 20th instant you contrast the premium ruling between Government and Corporation Debentures, the former of which so far exceed the latter in market value. Some time since I was struck with the same discrepancy, and instituted careful and particular inquiries, and with this result: that it was with them as with any other marketable commodity, when the demand exceeded the supply the price advanced. This is the genuine solution, and not, as you assume, from any bad odour the Council may be held in, and is brought about by circumstances over which neither the Government nor the Corporation have the least control, the leading one being, if I understand rightly this: that in almost all trust estates a binding clause is inserted restricting investments mainly to Government securities. You will, if you consult those engaged in the money market, perhaps be as much astonished as I was at the vast amount available for such investment. Only a short time since the Hon. John Frazer, no mean authority on such matters, from his place in the Legislative Council drew the attention of the Government to this fact, and deducing from it the advantage to the Government and the accommodation to the public if some of their money negotiations were conducted in Sydney and not London. On the score of "ability" to pay, and "security" there can surely be no doubt. Quite lately I made a computation furnished to the Government, showing the actual value of properties within the corporate limits to be thirty millions, and with the power of maximum taxation of 2s. in the £ on the annual value of this, I honestly hold that the debentures of the Corporation are every whit as good as those of the Government. I shall not only be much obliged by your insertion of this letter, but really think in fairness to the Corporation you should do so.

I am, &c.,
CHAS. H. LINES, City Treasurer.

The Pennsylvania Railroad report for 1881 shows the gross earnings of the main line and the branches from Pittsburg to Philadelphia to have been 27,647,001 dollars, and the expenses 15,468,469 dollars. The net earnings were 12,178,540 dollars. Adding the interest on investments, &c., 3,723,626 dollars, and deducting rentals, debt interest, taxes, &c., 5,770,448, leaves a net income on the main line of 10,131,718 dollars. The New Jersey Leased Lines, from Philadelphia to New York show gross earnings of 13,022,865 dollars, and expenses 8,811,281 dollars. The net earnings were 4,211,584 dollars. Adding interest on investments 210,836 dollars, and deducting rental interest, &c., 4,725,285 dollars, leaves a net loss in operating of 302,865 dollars. The Philadelphia and Erie Railroad shows gross earning, 3,454,309 dollars; expenses, 2,430,060 dollars; and net earnings 1,024,249 dollars, all absorbed for interest and rentals. After deducting the New Jersey lines' loss, the Pennsylvania main line income of 9,828,853 dollars was used thus:—The trust fund, 600,000 dollars; consolidated mortgage sinking fund, 286,480 dollars; sundry guarantees, 881,391 dollars; and dividends at 8 per cent., 5,861,717 dollars. There thus remains 2,199,265 dollars, which additions from the settlement of old accounts, &c., increase to 2,550,131 dollars. The surplus is carried to the profit and loss account for the current year: this amount now reaches 10,844,080 dollars.

Experienced strong N.E. winds and small rain to the group; variable winds, with heavy N.E. sea, to Gabo; thence fresh and moderate northerly winds, with much lightning, to arrival.

The Malay, barque, arrived from Timaru on Monday night. Captain Holm reports that he left Timaru on the 6th instant, with light northerly and north-easterly winds, which lasted until the 9th, when the Snares were cleared. The weather was fine, and the winds were light and variable until sighting Wollongong on the 21st. The wind then came away from the northward, and on the 23rd a very heavy gale was encountered from that quarter, the vessel having to be hove-to for several hours. Thence to arrival had light winds from the northward.

The barque Glenavon came into port yesterday morning, after a voyage from Hull extending over 111 days. Captain Tarney is in command of this fine vessel, which is in perfect order, and looks remarkably well after her three months' battling with the elements. He reports that he left Hull on the 2nd January, and cleared out from Grimsby on the 4th. Almost immediately after leaving heavy gales were encountered from the north-east, and they continued until after Beachy was passed on the 12th; thence until the 27th there was a continuance of gales from the south-west; passed inside of Coro in the Azores Group; got the north-east trades on the 6th February in lat. 12·28, and kept them till the 11th, when they were lost in 2·19; the Equator was crossed on the 14th February, the south-east trades, which were got in 1° north, were very light, and until 32° south was reached, when they were lost; the skysails were never taken in. On the 24th February were off the island of Trinidad, and on the 9th March Gough Island bore south-west, true, distant about 20 miles. The meridian of the Cape was passed on the 16th March, in lat. 49·19 S., and Cape Otway sighted on the 18th April at 1 a.m., the weather having been very fine and favourable from the Cape. On Saturday and Sunday the heavy weather reported as having been experienced by other ships was felt in its full intensity by the Glenavon, but fortunately no damage was done. Thence to arrival light northerly winds were met with. The Glenavon was brought up in Neutral Bay. This is her first voyage to Port Jackson. Her owners are Robert C. Hall and Co., of Cork.

The Arvonia, ship, arrived from London yesterday morning, and anchored in Neutral Bay at about noon. She brings a large general cargo. Her passage has been an unusually tedious one, owing to her having experienced head winds during the greater part of the voyage. She left London on the 31st December, and met with very rough weather down the English Channel, the wind coming in strongly from the westward, and there being a heavy confused sea. The north-east trades, which were very light, were got in 28° N., but they only lasted two days, and were succeeded by E. and S.E. light winds. The Equator was crossed on the 11th February, in 27° W., and the S.E. trades were got in 6° S., and continued until 27° S. W.N.W. succeeded the trades, and until the coast of Tasmania was reached on the 16th instant, the wind kept in the same quarter. Afterwards N. and N.W. breezes were experienced till arrival. The voyage was uneventful, with the exception that on the 7th March the jibboom and the foretopgallantmast were carried away during a fresh breeze.

The Genil (s.), which left Townsville some days ago with the remaining portion of the Marquis de Rays' expedition, is expected to arrive here either to-day or to-morrow. She has about 60 passengers on board, all of them foreigners, and all of them in distress.

The Orient steamer Liguria sailed from Plymouth on Friday last for Adelaide, Melbourne, and Sydney, with a large passenger list and cargo. The Potosi (s.), belonging to the same line, arrived at Plymouth on Friday morning.

The Cotopaxi (s.) cleared Port Phillip Heads at 10.20 a.m. yesterday for Sydney.

The Cunard Company have laid the keel of a monster steamer at an establishment on the Clyde. Although not so large as the City of Rome, she will have engines of even greater power, and, it is claimed, will be the fastest passenger steamer in the world. The new vessel will be of 7500 tons burthen and 10,000 horse-power, according to a statement in the London Times, and will be exceeded in size only by the new City of Rome and Great Eastern. She will have an extra promenade deck, and will practically be a five-decker, being fitted up for 450 first-class and 600 steerage passengers, with accommodation for a crew of 200 officers and men. The hull will be built with a double bottom, on what is called the longitudinal and bracket system, with watertight compartments. It is said that in her construction steel is to be employed instead of iron. The new vessel is to be ready for sea next season, and before being placed on the line will have the most elaborate fittings for the comfort and luxury of the passengers. The name will probably be the Servia.

The Austral, the new Orient liner (remarks the Glasgow Daily News) is the largest vessel yet built for the Australian trade, and she is intended to perform the voyage in 30 to 31 days' time. She is built of steel on the cellular double bottom systems, and is classed in the highest grade at Lloyd's. The principal dimensions of the vessel are:—Length between perpendiculars, 455 feet; breadth, 46 feet; depth, moulded, 37 feet; tonnage, about 5600 tons. The engines are of the three cylinder inverted type, the high pressure cylinder being 62 inches diameter, and the two low pressure 86 inches diameter by 5-feet stroke. Steam is supplied by four boilers at 90lb. pressure, and the engine will develop 6300 i.h.p. on trial. The vessel is built with four decks. On the upper deck amidships are erected a series of deck-houses, forming engine and boiler casings, and giving accommodation for officers, servants, galleys, music-room, and also entrances to saloons and cabins. The deck over this house is extended to the ship's side, and is supported on pillars, forming a spacious promenade for the saloon passengers. The whole of the main deck is occupied by first and second-class passengers, with the exception of the crew's space at the fore end, and a small compartment with intermediate passengers aft. The greatest novelty in the vessel is the arrangement of the saloons and cabins on this deck. Instead of the cabins being placed as usual along the ship's side, they are in this case separated from the side of the vessel by a whole passage which runs nearly the whole length of the ship, with cross passages at intervals. The first and second saloons are separated from the ship's side in the same way. These passages are lighted by large side scuttles, placed four feet apart—all fore and aft—and the saloons and cabins are lighted by windows from passages and also by skylight direct from the upper deck. The great advantage of this arrangement is that the side port can be kept open in very rough weather, any water that might be shipped wetting the passages only and not flooding the passengers' cabins as in the usual arrangement of cabins on board ship. The vessel has the usual steam winches, windlass, steam steering-gear, &c., and is intended to be lighted throughout by electric light.

The half-yearly meeting of the North Shore Ferry Company was held to-day; Mr. W. C. Goddard in the chair. The report showed that the profit for the half-year had been £1951; previous balance, £333; total, £2285, which the directors recommended for appropriation as follows:—To payment of a dividend of 1s. per share, £1000; to reserve fund, £750, leaving balance of £535 to go forward to next half-year. The report was unanimously adopted, and Captain Robertson was re-elected a director. Mr. W. G. Robey was re-elected auditor, and Mr. J. P. Brindley was elected auditor in place of Mr. W. J. M'Leod, retired in accordance with articles of association. A shareholder moved an advance of the fees to the directors, in consideration of the progress made by the company, but withdrew his motion in deference to the wish of the chairman, who suggested that this question should be brought before a larger meeting. A vote of thanks to the chairman, directors, and officers of the company closed the business.

To-day the City Council opened tenders for the purchase of 30,000 cattle sale yards debentures, and the following offers were accepted:—Mr. Cape for 1000 at £110 10s.; Robert Cox for 10,000 at £110 5s.; and Josiah Mullens for the balance (19,000) at £109 5s. 6d. 5000 debentures had been previously taken up at £112.

The prospectus has been issued of the Gunnedah Brewery Company, with a capital of £8000, in 8000 shares of £1 each, Mr. R. Marklove being the Sydney broker.

In the Import markets the approaching end of the month is bringing with it the customary slackness in trade; and the sales reported are, for the most part, of an insignificant character. In breadstuffs there is no change in quotations to notice. Town brands of Adelaide flour are quoted at from £15 to £15 10s., the latter for Hart's; country brands, £14 to £14 10s.; Victorian, £14 to £14 10s.; N. S. W., £14 10s. to £15. There is little to notice in grocery goods. In dried fruits, currants are quoted at from 4½d. to 5d., according to quantity and quality of fruit. Muir's marmalade was done at 7s. Dairymaid milk still very scarce, and worth 7s. 6d. in small lots; 8d. less taken to arrive. Keen's mustard, quarter lb., 5s.; half lb., 9s. Coleman's half lb. Durham, 5s. 4½d. Lee and Perrins' sauce, 11s. 6d. and 21s., half-pints and pints respectively. Five-medal sperm candles, in trade lots, moving at 7¼d. The salt market continues without change, small lines of Black Horse, Liverpool, from store, being placed at 75s. In liquids, the trade in wines and spirits was marked by nothing of interest; trade business in Lowndes's rum was done up to 4s. 9d., quarters. In metals, No. 8 White Cross fencing wire was placed at £14 15s., and No. 10, at £15 12s. 6d. Outside lines of galvanized iron were quitted at £23 10s. Importers are looking for better prices for the lots of cement coming forward. On the wharfs prime green lucerne hay is selling at £6 15s. to £7 per ton; maize, 5s. to 5s. 3d. per bushel, firm, market bare; seed and feed oats, 4s. to 4s. 3d. prime, 3s. 10d. to 3s. 11d. medium; bran and pollard, 1s. 6d. to 1s. 7d.; barley, 4s. to 4s. 3d.; onions, £4 per ton; chaff, £10 to £12; potatoes, £6 10s. to £7; butter, 1s. 3d. to 1s. 6d. per lb.; eggs, 2s. to 2s. 6d. per dozen; bacon, 7d. to 9d. per lb.; cheese, 5d. to 8d.; ham, 12d. to 13d.; honey, 4d. to 5d.; beeswax, 9d. to 11d.; lard, 8½d. per lb.; fowls, 2s. 6d. to 3s. per pair; ducks, 3s. to 3s. 6d.; geese, 5s. to 6s.; turkeys, 6s. to 12s.; millet brooms, 8s. to 10s. per dozen.

Messrs. John Bridge, Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Maiden, Hill, and Clark, and F. L. Barker report having held their weekly leather sales to-day. There was scarcely any perceptible change in the market: sole was scarcely so firm, other descriptions being unaltered. Kip realized 9d. to 15d.; sole, 5d. to 10d.; calf, 24d. to 30d.; yearling, 18d. to 24d.; cow tweed, 14d. to 22d.; calf tweed, 21d. to 26d.; yearling tweed, 22d.; horse tweed, 10d. to 16d.; harness, 8d. to 13d.; kangaroo, 16d. to 21d.; bridle, 9s. to 12s.; basils, 6s. to 15s. 6d.; bag, 9s. to 13s.

Provisional Directors (N. S. Wales):
Sir PATRICK JENNINGS, K.C.M.G., &c., &c.; The Hon. W. A. BRODRIBB, M.L.C.; W. R. HALL, Esq. (Cobb and Co.); Hon. S. H. TERRY, M.L.C.; W. C. HILL, Esq. (Maiden, Hill and Clark).

Solicitors:

Brokers:

CLARKE and CO., Elizabeth-street, Melbourne.
The List will close on WEDNESDAY, May 3rd, unless previously filled.
1. This Association is being formed for the purpose of enabling small capitalists, and residents in cities, to embark by combination in pastoral pursuits, and thus secure a share in the enormous profits which for many years past have been made by squatters in every portion of Australia.
2. The success which attended the floating of the Squatting Investment Company at Melbourne, upon which occasion one issue of £50,000 £5 shares was placed upon the market, and applications were received for more than double the number of shares issued, shows the high appreciation which the public entertain for this particular description of investment.
3. The Provisional Directors have under offer station properties in full-working order, the purchase which would at once pay the Association a large return upon the capital to be called up, and have the refusal of several large properties on the Borders of New South Wales, South Australia, and Queensland, in a district well adapted for sheep, and not more than 250 miles from a good port. This country is now within 150 miles of a railway station, and will, within a few years, be traversed by the lines projected to connect Queensland with South Australia. These properties held under long leases at a nominal rental, are not likely to be selected for at least half a century, and only require the expenditure of a comparatively small sum of money to be as valuable for sheep-farming as any portion of New South Wales or Victoria; but the Provisional Directors are not in any way pledged to the purchase of any of the properties under offer, and no contract will be entered into until the shares of the association have been taken up and the Permanent Directors appointed at a public meeting of the shareholders. The selection of officers will be entirely in the hands of the Permanent Directors.
4. The operations of the Association will be confined to Australia.
5. Several European companies have already successfully embarked a large amount of capital in station property in these colonies, and this Association will afford to those residents of Australia whose occupations compel them to reside in cities, and whose capital does not enable them to purchase stations for themselves, a new and promising outlet for their accumulations.
6. The only objection ever raised against Joint Stock Companies—viz., that they have not the advantage of the personal supervision of an individual, but that they are necessarily managed by paid officers, who have only an indirect interest in their success—cannot apply to investment in pastoral undertakings, inasmuch as the greater number of the best managed and most profitable stations throughout Australia are those in which the proprietors are non-resident.
7. The Provisional Directors with confidence submit this prospectus to the public, feeling sure that the capital invested by the shareholders will yield large annual returns, while the properties will become more and more valuable every year.
8. The Company may, if decided upon by the Provisional Directors, be considered floated when 50,000 shares have been applied for. Shares will be allotted according to priority of application; and as a proportion of the shares have been reserved for Victoria, early application is necessary.
9. The only charge upon the capital of the Company will be the usual expenses for advertising, brokerage, &c.
10. Applications for shares will be received by the undersigned, from whom prospectuses may be obtained.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 26, 1882.

On the resignation of Mr. Hall, the New Zealand Premier, the Governor did not send for Sir George Grey for the purpose of forming a Ministry, but for that of giving advice. Such is the version of the affair which the fuller information in the newspapers now supplies. The advice given by the latter was evidently to the same effect as that given by the Premier himself, namely, that the Governor should send for Mr. Whittaker, and Mr. Whittaker has it seems been summoned. As it turns out, therefore, the right thing has been done. The retiring chief gave his opinion as to the proper course to be taken by the Governor, and the Governor has taken that course. It may be presumed that the only material difference between the new Government and the old one will be, that Mr. Whittaker will be Premier instead of Mr. Hall. But it would seem that the Governor did not commit himself to the step which has now been announced until the advice of Mr. Hall was supported by that of Sir George Grey. We are told that Sir Arthur Gordon is surprised that anybody could have credited him with sending for Sir George Grey for any other purpose than that of assisting him with his counsels. But it is difficult to see what other construction could have been put upon his action. If upon the resignation of one leading politician a Governor sends for another, it is generally taken for granted that he has but one object in view. It may be said of course that Governors need advice as well as other people, and that in times of difficulty it is a common thing for the Queen's representatives to seek the assistance of gentlemen in whom they have confidence. And this is true. In the choosing of fresh advisers, the Queen herself has been in the habit of availing herself of the wisdom of others. But it is not the custom in England or in the colonies for the recognised leaders of Oppositions to have the privilege of saying to whom the task of forming a new Ministry should be entrusted. If the illness of Sir Henry Parkes had necessitated his retirement, and as a result of this the whole of the members of the Government had tendered their resignation, the Governor would hardly have asked Mr. Forster or Mr. Farnell to tell him what he ought to do. The asking for advice from either of these gentlemen would have been quite as remarkable a thing as the asking him to form a Government. A man less likely than Sir George Grey to give an impartial opinion under such circumstances could hardly have been found. It was Sir George Grey that the late Premier displaced, and since the time that the Hall-Atkinson Government has been in office the lament of Sir George has been that the colony of New Zealand is going to ruin. In the opinion of Sir George Grey the one thing required to save the colony is that the party of which he is chief should be restored to power. So violent a political partizan could hardly be trusted to advise a Governor to take the right course unless, as it seems to be in the present instance, the right course should be the inevitable one. No one who reads the story of the negotiations which have been going on in New Zealand is likely to come to any other conclusion than that in the action he has taken Sir Arthur Gordon has established a bad precedent. The precedent is the more remarkable from the circumstances which were made to surround it. It appears that at the time of Mr. Hall's resignation the Governor was at Christchurch and Sir George Grey at Auckland. For the purposes of his mission the latter was summoned to Wellington. Instead of starting at once upon his journey, however, the political chief is understood to have summoned his supporters together. Thus not only Sir George Grey, but Sir George Grey's political friends, were made to have a voice in the selection of the successor of Mr. Hall. This, it must be allowed, is a very unusual way of managing a political crisis. In a colony like New Zealand, and especially under existing circumstances, it must also be held to have been a most inconvenient one. It is well known that, on the native question especially, Sir Arthur Gordon has disapproved of the policy of the Hall-Atkinson Government. It is stated that most of the members of the Government are personally obnoxious to his Excellency. If such is the case, there was the greater reason for the exercise of sound discretion, and this in the present case was signally absent.

Early in March last the financial statement of the Government of India for the year 1882-3 was laid before the Legislative Council in Calcutta by Major the Hon. E. Baring. The speech is full of interest, as showing the elasticity of the revenue of India, notwithstanding the poverty of the mass of the people, and also by reason of the evidence it contains of the desire of the Government to improve the condition of the people by lightening taxation, giving increased facilities for trade, and providing for greater economy and efficiency in the subordinate branches of the public service. A general, though moderate, scheme is to be carried out for bettering the position of officers of the lower grades, in accordance with the policy of steadily increasing the share of the work of the country which shall be performed by natives. Arrangements have been made, at a considerable cost, for what is termed the "provincialisation of the finances," with the view of giving the provincial governments a direct interest in not only the "provincialised" revenue, but also in the chief items of Imperial revenue raised within their provinces; and steps have been taken (although this question is only in the initial stage) to promote local self-government by widening the sphere of action of bodies entrusted with the administration of local funds.

We need not enter here into the full and somewhat complicated details of finance which the statement supplies. It may be enough to say that while the "Budget Estimates" for 1881-2 (or those made a year ago) showed a surplus of £855,000, the "Regular Estimates" now submitted give revenue £72,913,000, and expenditure £71,336,000, leaving a surplus of £1,577,000. This result is reached after the repayment of more than half a million to the provincial governments, being the amount they contributed to Imperial funds during the Afghan war, also after setting aside £580,000 for the local governments in connection with the provincialisation before referred to, and after allowing for probably an excess of a quarter of a million on account of war expenditure. But for these extraordinary items the surplus of normal revenue over normal expenditure would, it is said, have been £2,357,000. It may be convenient here to state that the direct cost of the late war was (in true sterling) £14,679,000, exclusive of £3,614,000 for frontier railways, or in all £18,293,000, of which £5,000,000 has been paid by the Government of England.

Having this large surplus of a million and a-half to start with, and regarding it as an undue representation of the actual condition of ordinary finance, the Indian Government has resolved upon taking some bold and sweeping measures of fiscal reform, which could not have been ventured upon under less favourable conditions. It is estimated that if these changes were not made, the year 1882-3 would close with a surplus of £3,171,000. The changes, however, are expected to cut down the revenue to £66,459,000, which, with an expenditure of £66,174,000, will leave a surplus of £285,000. It has been held that in India there should always be a surplus of half a million, to provide for unforeseen charges; but in view of the caution exercised in preparing the Estimates, and of the fact that the expenditure includes a million and a half for "famine insurance," it is considered safe to proceed in the expectation of this smaller margin. The famine insurance fund is to be applied, one-half in the construction of works that would tend to prevent the recurrence of famine or to lessen the cost of relief, and the other half in the reduction of debt. The sum is estimated as covering the average cost of famine relief throughout a series of years.

The chief of the proposals now made are the total abolition of the cotton duties and the general import duties; the special duties on wine, beer, spirits, and liqueurs remaining, with those on arms and ammunition, salt and opium. This involves a remission of taxation to the amount of £1,219,000. The next measure is the reduction of the duty on salt, now varying in different parts of India, to a uniform rate, except in Burmah and the Trans-Indus districts of the Punjab. This involves the surrender of about £1,400,000. There is some difference of opinion as to the wisdom of this policy. The Customs duties, it is said, have had some degree of protective influence, and their sudden abolition may injure native industry. On the other hand, it is confidently held that these taxes were numerous and vexatious out of proportion to the revenue they brought in, and that their removal will have a direct tendency to promote trade, stimulate enterprise, and give play to native industry under more profitable forms. The Government has, in fact, full faith in free trade as the true policy for India. It is said that the salt tax might have been equalized without a sweeping reduction, and that it is practically little felt. The Government has acted on information to the effect that this tax is a burden upon the poorest of the people. It is, moreover, argued that a large reduction will greatly increase consumption, and so diminish the loss of revenue, whilst the retention of the tax at the lowest rate will make it an elastic reserve to be used in times of pressure. A suggestion has been made that the license tax should have been abolished. The Government left that question for the present, for various reasons, preferring to afford relief to the many who feel the salt tax, instead of relieving the few in better circumstances by whom the license is paid. The retention of the export duty on rice has been objected to; but the answer is that everything could not be done at once, and that more will be gained by dealing with the import duties thoroughly, and with the rice question at a future favourable time. The opium duty is retained, and a revenue of £7,250,000 is expected from it. As is well known, an influential organization has been formed in England to agitate for the suppression of the opium trade. Major Baring, therefore, had sufficient reason for making an elaborate statement of the case from the Indian point of view. On the one hand, the Government cannot afford to lose the revenue now raised from opium, and could not at present extract an equal sum from the people by any practicable method of taxation. On the other hand, the retirement of the Government from all connection with the trade would probably lead to its extension, and to an aggravation of the evils which now arise out of it. But if the Indian Government can maintain the monopoly, and get as large a revenue as possible from it, this may lead to financial results which will possibly enable the Government at some future day to suppress the cultivation of the poppy within its own territory.

Mr. Slattery was quite right in saying that we must not blame Judges for the mistakes of juries; and in the Bulletin case the mistake in the first instance was undoubtedly with the jury. The particular article on which issue was joined was a justifiable exposure of a public evil, and without any purport to injure individuals unnecessarily. As such, it was not a libel, and though it was quite true that the proprietors of the ground could show that they had suffered a sensible injury from the exposure, still they did not come into court with clean hands; they could not rebut the allegations that were made, and could not deny that their ground had been turned to an improper use. Under the circumstances they were not equitably entitled to damages. The great pains they have since taken to prevent the recurrence of similar abuses is in itself a practical admission that those abuses needed to be guarded against, and is also a justification of the exposure. But it is not only the jury that we have to be dissatisfied with. The judicial ruling that allowed the issue to be virtually changed, and shifted from the article to the paper, was unsatisfactory, and the upholding of that ruling by the majority of the Supreme Court was still more unsatisfactory, and it is specially so because, owing to peculiar circumstances, it has not been possible to get this decision revised. Mr. Wallace stated that in collecting at Newcastle he had met with considerable difficulty because people did not distinguish between the journal in general and the Clontarf article in particular. This is natural enough, and the lay mind may be forgiven for not keeping distinct what even the judicial mind has confused. At the same time it is a wholesome sign that the public mind is on the alert to keep down the abuses of the press, as well as to maintain its just rights. Journals which infringe the sanctity of private life are an injury to society, and as such properly deserve discouragement at the hands of the public, juries, and the courts. The liberty of the press does not mean the license of the press, and the right of the press to protect the public does not mean the right to oppress private persons. It is just as important to prevent the abuse of the press as it is to protect its use, and we may hope that in the long run both ends will be forwarded by the late trial.

There is no healthier sign in the country life of New South Wales than the gradual turn of the tide of public patronage from race meetings to shows. It is well to use the word show in this instance free of any qualification. For the country show of to-day is not more of wool and mutton than of grass and grain, nor of grass and grain than of fruits and flowers, nor more indeed of the outdoor life than the indoor labour. The men bring the produce of the land, the women the results of their industry, the children the proofs of their progress; and as men and women and children accompany their exhibits and place themselves as it were on view, the show becomes a show indeed, a synopsis of the twelve months' life, the foundation of an order of real Australian feasts which will live when false and fanciful revivals of another time and another land will be forgotten. It is hard to conceive a time when any element of evil in these gatherings shall counterbalance their good, when emulation shall have become so feverish in its nature as to kill or retard sound progress, or when dissipation or debauchery shall take the place of friendly greeting, or when the thoughts of the people shall be centred too much upon the glory of the show and too little upon that wider labour of which the show is but the symbol and the sign. It cannot possibly be proved that show-day has killed race-day in any locality; such a result is not to be desired. The race meeting might have its use could it be rid of its many [illegible] abuses, but a simple glance at those very reliable statistics, the returns of gate-money, will show that when the show has become a holiday and festival, the race meeting has been comparatively ignored; and thus should it be, for while there are very few people in the bush who can afford the luxury of racing, there is scarcely one so poor that he is compelled to deny himself the pleasure of the show. The Bathurst and Goulburn shows are events already chronicled. The Hunter River day, now about to commence, makes the third of the great provincial events of the year. It certainly will not be less than the others, as the district has probably been more highly favoured by nature than any other of Australia, and moreover has had the advantage of a half-century of cultivation, and of that honest cultivation which began before the heats raised by the infallible land law consumed the true home passion in the Australian yeoman's heart. West Maitland will put on holiday costume for a day or two, and the streets of the old borough will be crowded as the thoroughfares of the metropolis. New ideas will be gathered and taken home by those who come both to learn and to enjoy, results of enterprise will be shown in larger and finer returns than were attainable under old systems, and the town and the district will be mutually enlightened and cheered, and neither impoverished or robbed.

The Canadian House of Commons is reported to have passed a resolution in favour of granting to Ireland the same autonomy that Canada has. What Canada has is self-government, but no representation in the British Parliament. What the Home Rulers profess to desire is self-government in addition to representation in the British Parliament. Ireland has not only its full share of the House of Commons, but a great deal more than its full share, and if the doctrine of equal electoral districts were carried out, the Irish vote would be diminished by one-third. The objection to separating the Irish and English Parliaments is that it would fundamentally alter the English Constitution. It would be reasonable enough to do this if a majority of the people wished it, but it would not be reasonable to do it at the bidding of a very small minority. For one part of the United Kingdom to have a separate Parliament, and for the other parts not to be so favoured, would be anomalous. Yet to have a separate Parliament for Scotland—perhaps two—one for Gaelic and one for Saxon Scotland; another for Wales, and another or perhaps two or three for corresponding populations in subdivided England, would turn the Constitution into a federation. Such a change might or might not be a good thing, but the bulk of the people do not wish it, and are not prepared for it, and the objection to Home Rule lies in what would inevitably come from it. That is what statesmen have to consider, and they do not like the prospect. If the Canadians were as close to England as the Irish are, would they want a separate Parliament? And if they would not, why should they think it a good thing for England? The position of that country is quite a different one from that of a colony.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer submitted his Budget to the House of Commons on Monday. The financial condition of the country had improved, though in a somewhat sluggish manner. Mr. Gladstone congratulated the country on the decrease of drinking and the increase in the savings of workmen, as indicated by the returns. £90,000 will be required to defray expenses of governing Cyprus, and £180,000 for extra pay to the forces stationed in Ireland to preserve the peace of the country. The estimated expenditure for the current year is £84,500,000, and the estimated revenue £85,000,000. The duties on carriages are to be increased, producing revenue to the amount of a quarter of a million sterling, and this revenue is to be applied in the reduction of local highway rates. The burden of local taxation is also to be relieved.

The P. and O. Company's steamship Carthage arrived at King George's Sound yesterday morning, about 36 hours in advance of time-table date. She has a case of sickness on board, but as it is not of a contagious character it is not likely to cause her detention at any port; the Sydney portion of her mails, which are to March 24, may, therefore, be expected to reach here on Tuesday morning next.

The Secretary of State for the Colonies has forwarded for the information of the Government of New South Wales a copy of a despatch from the High Commissioner for the Western Pacific (Sir Arthur Gordon), enclosing a return showing the number of cases, from November, 1878, to May, 1881, in which an inquiry has been made into outrages committed by natives in the Western Pacific Islands, and the action taken in each instance. During the period mentioned—six months—the number of outrages committed was 23. The document is published in another column. The original despatch will be laid before Parliament next session.

Some alterations of an important character are being carried out by the City Engineer with respect to the supply of water to the suburbs. In accordance with a resolution recently passed by the City Council, Newtown, Petersham, Balmain, Leichhardt, and Elswick are being connected with the high-level reservoir at Paddington, and it is hoped that in the course of a few days the residents of all these suburbs will enjoy a constant supply of water at high pressure, instead of the intermittent supply of which complaints have hitherto been made. At Marrickville additional pipes are being laid down, so as to secure a good supply of water from the low-level reservoirs. A trunk main is to be carried along the new Canterbury road to some distance beyond Norwood Hill; and it is intended to carry branches to the right and left as they may be required by the inhabitants of that part of the suburbs.

Preparations are being made for the construction of the Parramatta-street and Newtown tramway. Piles of sleepers have been deposited at various points of the proposed route. Those near Parramatta-street are neatly arranged over the gutters, so as to be out of the way of passengers: but opposite the Institution for the Deaf, Dumb, and the Blind they are left on the footpath without reference to the convenience of passengers. Excavations have been made and work begun in a portion of George-street West, from Terminus-street to Regent-street, presumably as a preliminary to the laying down of the tram rails to connect the Redfern line with that passing through George-street West.

The first report of the Mayor with respect to public buildings which he had visited for the purpose of ascertaining what means of egress had been provided, and what was the nature of the ventilation, was submitted to the City Council at its meeting yesterday. The report, which is a voluminous document, dealt exclusively with the theatres of the city, giving detailed descriptions of the several portions of the theatres to which the public are admitted, as well as of the parts occupied for the purpose of performances, and showed what provisions have been made for ingress and egress, ventilation, and sanitary conveniences. With one exception the theatres were considered to be in an exceedingly unsatisfactory condition. The Gaiety Theatre was spoken of in favourable terms, but objection was taken to the means provided for persons leaving the gallery. Appended to the report are a series of suggestions. The following sentence forms part of the report:—"It does not appear to be in the power of the council to adopt or enforce any regulations as to the arrangements or management of theatres already built in the city, but it is hoped that by some special enactment, or by some action on the part of the Government, provision may be made for dealing with a matter which so seriously affects the safety, health, and comfort of the community." It was resolved that the report be printed, and that a copy be sent to the Government.

A meeting of the City Council was held yesterday, when it was decided to rescind a resolution passed on the 14th March, which was as follows:—"That licenses to slaughter calves, lambs, and sucking pigs be granted, under the bylaw of 5th September, 1881, as provided by the 138th section of the Sydney Corporation Act of 1879, to the undermentioned parties, viz.:—William Buttell, 154, Pitt-street; Daniel O'Connor, 54, William-street; Thomas Playfair, 101, George-street; Henry Woolfe, 650, George-street; William Weir, 186, Pitt-street." When the motion for the rescission of the foregoing resolution was submitted, Alderman Merriman held up his hand with the ayes, but Alderman Playfair caught hold of his arm. The Mayor said the former had no right to play tricks like that. Alderman Playfair said that Alderman Merriman intended to vote the other way, and the latter confirmed this statement.

Several of the aldermen, at the meeting of the City Council yesterday, expressed their opinions pretty freely as to the manner in which metal was laid down in George-street. One complained that mud was used instead of proper blinding, and that he had never seen any officer superintending the repair of the street. He also said that the council did not want a presiding or consulting surveyor, but one who would go about and see that the works were being carried out properly.

We are requested to state that the Mayoress of Sydney will hold a reception, at the Town Hall, on Friday afternoon, at half-past 3 o'clock.

For some time past there has been a notification in the Herald that two Walker bursaries were available at the University for ladies who wished to prosecute their studies, and to whom some assistance was necessary. We are gratified to hear that two applications have already been made, and that both applicants intimate their intention of going up for matriculation in June next. No ladies, therefore, need be deterred by the thought that they would be singular if they should contemplate matriculation. We may add that the bursaries have not yet been allotted, so that there is room for competition.

The immigrants by the ship Hereford, which arrived on Saturday, have all been landed—the single girls on Monday, and the married couples and single men yesterday afternoon. Most of the single girls have come out to join their friends, but a few of them will be for hire to-day, at noon, at the Immigration Depot, Hyde Park. The others will also be for hire to-day, at the hiring-room, Fort Macquarie. Generally speaking, the immigrants are a fine healthy-looking lot of people, and should prove useful colonists. The men are principally of the labouring class, but there is also a number of artizans, including masons, among them.

We understand the steamer Genil, with the remaining portion of the Marquis de Rays' expedition which left Townsville some days ago, is due here either to-day or to-morrow. She brings about 60 passengers, all foreigners and in distress, so that there will be another opportunity for the Government to practise the virtue of charity. It appears the Queensland Government did nothing for the unfortunates.

A session of the fifth Synod of the Diocese of Sydney will be held on Tuesday, the 9th of May next, and during that session the question of appointing a Bishop of Sydney in the place of the late Right Rev. Dr. Barker will be considered. Two or more candidates for the office are mentioned, but we are informed nothing is yet definitely known with respect to the candidates, and cannot be definitely known till some days. Pending the election of a Bishop of Sydney, the Bishop of Brisbane, as senior bishop, is acting as Primate. As we have already stated, the Diocese of Sydney has the right to elect its own bishop, but as the Bishop of Sydney is also Primate of Australia, the election requires the concurrence of the House of Bishops. The members of the Synod (which is convened for the 9th proximo) are requested to meet at the Cathedral, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, when the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered. The Synod will meet at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of the same day, in the Church Society's House, Phillip-street. The clergy are requested to appear in their gowns, and such of them as have been licensed to a separate cure of souls since the last session will be required to produce their licenses. The lay members of the Synod who have been elected since the last session will give in their certificates of election, and sign their names in a book prepared for that purpose.

Upon his Honor the Chief Commissioner taking his seat on the Insolvency Court Bench yesterday, Mr. Sandeman, on behalf of the official assignees of the Court, sincerely welcomed his Honor back to the Bench over which he had presided with so much ability for many years, and expressed a hope that his Honor's health had been restored by his visit to England. Messrs. Wallace and Bradley, on behalf of the legal profession, also congratulated the Chief Commissioner upon the resumption of his duties, and hoped that the rest and change obtained by him during his recent holiday had benefited his health. His Honor said he was obliged to the gentlemen who had addressed him for their good wishes, and was happy to preside again over the Court business, which he found, only after many years of service, too much for his strength, rendering a long rest necessary.

The Government have approved of the offer of £25 reward for information that will lead to the apprehension of late Constable Mahood, who is charged on a Judge's warrant with having failed to appear in accordance with his bail to take his trial at the recent Court of Quarter Sessions.

The annual licensing meeting at the Central Police Court was commenced yesterday. A large number of applications for renewal of licenses in the city and suburbs were granted; one was refused. The Court, at 5 o'clock, adjourned until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Among the list of cases set down for hearing at the Water Police Court, yesterday, was one in which Mr. Joseph Coulter, the secretary to the Randwick Asylum, had to appear by direction of the house committee to prosecute a parent for neglecting to contribute towards the support of his two children who are inmates of the Asylum. The defendant pleaded guilty to the information, and requested a settlement out of Court, excusing his neglect to contribute to his absence from Sydney. Mr. Coulter, however, objected to the adoption of such a course of procedure, and submitted information which showed that defendant had every opportunity of contributing towards his children's support, but instead of his doing so he had in every way evidenced a desire to disregard his parental obligations. The Bench made an order for the payment of 10s. per week with costs of court. It is hoped that these proceedings will prove a warning to all such disposed parents, for it will be to their interest to avoid the consequences of the neglect of their parental duty in the matter of contributing towards the support of their children.

We are informed by the postal authorities that the statement of a correspondent that the letters are never delivered in Phillip-street North until 11 o'clock in the morning and 6 o'clock in the evening, published in our issue of the 20th instant, is incorrect. Unless through the arrival of an English mail, or any other cause, the morning delivery happens to be delayed, letters are never delivered so late as 11 o'clock in the locality referred to; and in the afternoon the carriers, after completing their rounds, are invariably back at the General Post Office by 5 or 5.15 p.m.

In reference to the article on "Old and New Sydney," which appeared in yesterday's issue, Mr. Thomas Rowe, the well-known architect, informs us of several instances which have come under his notice of the existence of water-wells near the old Tank-stream in the early days of the city. A number of these wells have been reopened while excavating to secure foundations for several buildings in and near Pitt-street. One was discovered on the site of Messrs. Hoffnung's premises, Pitt-street; another on the site of Messrs. Newton Brothers' premises, Pitt-street; two on the site of the Sydney Arcade, King-street; two on the land where the Victoria Theatre formerly stood in Pitt-street; one on the site of the old Labour Bazaar, Pitt-street; and two on the block of land where the Royal Arcade has been erected in Pitt-street. One of the two last-mentioned required nearly 100 loads of material to fill it. In making these excavations spring water was occasionally tapped, and even in the driest seasons the ground was found to be saturated with water. Upon the site of the premises which Messrs. Hoffnung and Co. now occupy an old mooring post was found. It is a matter for conjecture what the post was used for, but it is very doubtful that the Tank-stream was at any time navigable even for boats to a point nearly as far as the present General Post Office.

The wine awards made in connection with the recent exhibition held by the Agricultural Society will be found in another column. The judges, when their work was concluded, expressed pleasure at the general improvement in the exhibits this year over those hitherto sent in, remarking that the superiority in "condition" was very manifest.

The Hon. George Thornton, M.L.C., who a short time ago was appointed Protector of the Aborigines, has had an office provided for him in the Public Offices, Bridge-street, and there the business connected with his position will be transacted.

In July, 1881, a meeting of teachers, under the Department of Public Instruction, was held at the Fort-street Public school, to consider how the teachers as a body could appropriately express their appreciation of the impartiality and zeal of the late Council of Education in their administration of the Public Schools Act of 1866, and more especially of their interest in the welfare of the teaching profession. It was then determined to invite subscriptions in order to found, if possible, a scholarship in the Sydney University, to be called the Council of Education Scholarship. Circulars were accordingly sent to all the teachers in the colony, soliciting contributions, and the assistance of the inspectors in the task of collection has been called into requisition. Satisfactory progress, we are informed, is being made in the matter, and it is believed that the necessary amount of money will be easily raised.

The Rev. Dr. Steel, last night, delivered, at the Redfern Town Hall, the second of his series of lectures on his recent tour through the Highlands of Scotland. The lecture was illustrated by splendid lantern views of abbey, cathedral, and castle, lakes and mountains; and in reference to each the lecturer imparted a store of highly interesting historical reminiscences. The hall was well filled, and the lecturer was frequently interrupted by the plaudits of the audience. On the motion of the Rev. T. J. Curtis, seconded by the Rev. J. Gardiner, a unanimous vote of thanks was accorded to Dr. Steel for his very interesting and instructive lecture, and the meeting was closed with a doxology and benediction.

The Rev. J. Olley gave an interesting lecture on the American poet Longfellow, last evening, in the Congregational Church, Manly, to a large and appreciative audience. The rev. lecturer, in a forcible way, pointed out the special fitness of Longfellow as a popular poet, his supreme intelligence, and his readiness at turning to practical account information of the most varied kinds, and especially his great susceptibility to the spirit of the age. He was both a literary artist and a poet. The Mayor occupied the chair. On the motion of Mr. R. Nott, a cordial vote of thanks was accorded to the lecturer, and a similar compliment was also paid to the chairman.

"Shakespeare, Burns, and Moore, viewed from a Christian standpoint," formed the subject of a lecture, delivered at the Presbyterian Church, Pitt-street, last night, by the Rev. Henry Macready. The lecturer, after pointing out that the three poets named were typical representatives of England, Scotland, and Ireland, proceeded to give a sketch of each one's life, and to quote specimens of their poetry. They made, he said, no professions of piety, and it would be vain to look for evidences of it in their works. In many respects each one's writings, however splendid the genius displayed in them, had a tendency which could not be called a moral one—such writings as the sonnets of Shakespeare and some of Burns' brightest poems. In his peroration the lecturer spoke very eloquently, and the lecture throughout was full of interesting matter, and was attentively listened to.

Mr. John Gelding, Mayor of Petersham, recently gave a ball in connection with the opening of the Town Hall of that suburb. Arrangements are, we understand, being made to reciprocate Mr. Gelding's generosity by giving him a return ball, which it is intended shall be held soon.

Seldom of late years has a more attractive programme been put forth than that for the complimentary concert to Mr. Andrew Fairfax, which will be given to-night at the Protestant Hall, and certainly the concert will be only a fitting recognition of the ready kindness with which, ever since he first appeared upon the concert stage, Mr. Fairfax has always assisted at entertainments of a similar kind. In arranging the programme the chief difficulty was, not a paucity of artists, but an almost too generous supply of them, and so, although there are 15 solos to be sung, Mr. Fairfax is only down for one of them. The ladies and gentlemen assisting him on this occasion are Signora Fabris, Miss Marie St. Clair, Miss Madeline St. Clair, Misses Foxall (2), Dr. Ellis, Mr. Hallewell, and Mr. W. Smith, Herr Hugo Alpen being accompanist, and Mr. Hector M'Lean conductor. The concert is under the patronage of his Excellency Lord Augustus Loftus, Sir Alfred Stephen, Sir John Robertson, Sir G. Wigram Allen, Sir P. A. Jennings, Commodore Erskine, the Mayor of Sydney, and other well well-known gentlemen; and there is every reason to anticipate that it will be very well attended.

Another addition has been made to the ranks of the skilled musicians and vocalists whom Sydney possesses, in Miss Pedley, a young lady who, a few years ago, displayed such marked musical ability that she was encouraged to leave this city for a time, to prosecute her studies in London, and fit herself for a professional career. Several circumstances assured her success almost from the first. She was possessor not only of a good natural voice, but of talent as a violinist; and, furthermore, she is the niece of Madame Sainton-Dolby and M. Sainton, the former of whom is as clever a teacher as she was a superb ballad singer, and the latter of whom is a well-known musician and instrumentalist. Miss Pedley studied singing under the one and violin-playing under the other, and applied herself to study with such good effect that in 1881 she became a medallist of the Royal Academy of Music London. Early in the present year she sang and played at a public concert in London, and the Musical World, the Queen, the World, and other papers speak of her efforts in very laudatory terms. As Miss Pedley has now returned to Sydney to practise her profession here, we may expect to be able to judge of her abilities for ourselves in a little time.

A public meeting of the residents of Burwood, convened by the Mayor in response to a requisition, was held in the Burwood Town Hall last night, to consider the propriety of appointing a deputation to the Minister for Works to point out the great advantage that would be afforded to a large population by an extension of the tramway, now nearly completed as far as Camperdown, along the Parramatta-road as far as the Burwood-road or Neich's Corner, Burwood. The attendance was small, but resolutions favouring the object of the meeting were agreed to.

The Protection and Political Reform League held its usual weekly meeting at the Temperance Hall last evening, Mr. N. Melville, M.L.A., president of the league, in the chair. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The secretary, Mr. R. C. Luscombe, brought up his report, and read the correspondence. New members were elected, and the time for holding regular council meetings was altered from Tuesdays to Fridays. The question as to the time for holding the next public meeting of the league was not settled, in consequence of the near approach of the annual council meeting; but this question will be determined in a day or two by the president. Accounts to the amount of about £10, incurred in the inaugural meeting at the Masonic Hall on the 17th instant, were passed, and the balance paid. All reports of the members went to show that genuine interest had been aroused throughout the colony in the cause of encouraging colonial industries.

On Monday evening last the usual fortnightly meeting of the Waratah Band of Hope took place at the Asylum, Randwick. There was a large attendance of children, and the chair was occupied by the Superintendent, Mr. Thomas, who delivered a very interesting address upon the principles of total abstinence, and the advantages derivable from adherence thereto. As usual, the programme of songs, duets, and recitations was a good one, and its rendition by the juvenile artists indicated the excellent training to which they were subject, and the delight they experienced in acquiescing. The inculcation of the principles of sobriety into the minds of the children through the agency of this Band of Hope will be, doubtless, productive of much good, and a great improvement will be effected in their vocal and elocutionary powers.

A numerously attended meeting was held in the Protestant Hall, Gladesville, on last Monday evening, to consider what steps should be taken to enlarge Christ Church, which is not sufficiently commodious for the requirements of the parish. The incumbent occupied the chair, and after giving an address on the necessity of enlarging the church, called on the Venerable Archdeacon King, the former incumbent of Gladesville, to address the meeting. The Archdeacon forcibly urged on the parishioners to take united action in providing additional accommodation in the church in which for some two years he ministered. A resolution moved by Mr. Herring, and seconded by Mr. Pearson, was unanimously passed, affirming, "That this meeting is of opinion that the church should be at once enlarged, in order to meet present and prospective requirements." The financial condition of the parish was shown to be in a satisfactory state; and the result of an appeal to the meeting by the incumbent, to liquidate the existing debt on the church, was liberally responded to by the whole amount being paid. Subscriptions were acknowledged from several friends outside the parish. The meeting was closed with the benediction by the archdeacon.

The Glebe Band of Courage met in the hall of the Presbyterian Church on Monday evening. There was a full attendance of children as well as adults. After the opening service, the chairman (Rev. A. Gardiner) examined the young on a portion of Scripture. Addresses were delivered by the Rev. Henry Macready and Mr. Neil Livingstone. A number of pieces were recited by the children, and the chairman gave a reading. At the close, ten or twelve remained to take the pledge.

It is almost past belief, yet we have the authority of a London morning paper for it, that James Nuttall, one of the crew of Nelson's ship the Victory, had been for several years past an inmate of the Bradford poorhouse. He breathed his last there at the extraordinary age, it is asserted, of 102 years. It was a sorry fate for one who fought by the side of the most famous of English admirals in the most renowned of all naval engagements. And the careers of his descendants have been equally unfortunate. At the time of his decease he had a son aged 78, who was also in the receipt of parochial relief, and even his grandson, though but 30 years old, is now working at test labour in the union.

"Ye Olde Englishe Fayre" is the title of a new polka composed by Mr. Frank Morris, and published by Akhurst and Co. Its theme is simple, but extremely bright and tuneful, and as a musical composition of the lighter kind it is certainly clever. At the present time its title alone is almost sufficient to recommend it, and when it becomes known it is sure to be popular.

Some of the flower plots in Hyde Park are so full of bloom just now that they call forth a considerable amount of admiration from those who have to pass through the park. Unfortunately, however, some of the visitors to the park are not those who are content to admire. Some of this class have recently indulged their evil propensities by repairing to the enclosures at night time, and stealing some plants and destroying others. The police will probably be on the look-out for such offenders.

At 4 o'clock yesterday morning a quantity of lead pipe was stolen from the Turkish Bath, Bligh-street; at 7 the thief was arrested in Bridge-street; and at 11 he received two months' hard labour at the hands of Mr. Marsh, Water Police Magistrate.

A fire occurred at Marshall Brothers', chemists, Market-street, yesterday, between 9 and 10. An explosion took place, caused by some spirits of wine catching fire. A youth named Oswald Dawson, in the employ of the above, was severely injured, all his clothes being burnt off; and had not Mr. C. Marshall extricated him from the flames he must have been burnt to death, being covered with the inflammable fluid. Mr. Marshall then stopped the further progress of the flames by emptying a large quantity of solution of ammonia on them. The stock is insured in the Colonial Mutual for £650. The City Fire Brigade was in prompt attendance, but the fire was put out before they arrived. It appears that some of the chemists were employed in the manufacture of syrups, when the spirit, which was near the gas-stove used, caught fire. Dawson is very badly burnt, and although not in any great danger, has received a severe shock, and it will be some weeks before he will be able to resume work. The amount of damage to the stock has been assessed at £19 10s.

Shortly before 10 o'clock last night some boys set fire to a quantity of straw which was on a vacant piece of ground in Campbell-street. The flames attracted attention, and the firebells were rung. When the brigades reached the place, however, it was found that the straw had been burnt, and that no damage of consequence had been done.

A man named James Johnson, of Swan-street, was cut on the head with a tumbler last evening. He was taken to the Hospital, where the wound was dressed by Dr. Twynam.

With regard to coolie labour in the island of Reunion, the Western Morning Herald (a Plymouth paper) says:—"Englishmen have long regarded the coolie traffic as something very like slavery under another name. It is true the Indian Government have taken the most elaborate precautions against any abuse of the system so far as it affects our own colonies. Coolies are not allowed to be shipped from India except under careful stipulations as to wages and term of service. No coolie can make a contract for more than five years, and when the contract expires he must have a free passage home. It has been found, however, that in spite of these regulations the treatment of coolies in the colonies is very far from satisfactory. The planters have been accused on trustworthy evidence of evading the law. Strict inquiries have been made of late years in Mauritius and Demerara with the result that the authorities have been obliged to increase the stringency of the rules devised for the protection of the coolies. But in the French colonies no such guarantees against oppression appear to exist. Miserable revelations come from the island of Réunion, which has long had a bad repute for planter tyranny. A correspondent who recently visited the island denounces the 'hypocritical system of coolie slavery' which prevails there."

Mr. Oscar Wilde has (says an English paper) at length found a champion in America. The champion, like himself, is an Irishman, like himself has some of the qualities of a clever charlatan, like himself has been abused. Mr. Dion Boucicault is Mr. Oscar Wilde's defender. He says of him that under the affectations which disfigure him beats a warm heart. Unfortunately it is hard to see what good this testimonial will do to its object. In his American lectures Mr. Wilde displays his affectations, but not his heart. Moreover, Boucicault praising Wilde! It is a little too much like self-praise to be true commendation.

The thirty-third annual meeting of the members of the Australian Mutual Provident Society is to be held at the Head Office, Pitt-street, this afternoon, at 2 o'clock. The directors' report, which has been circulated amongst the members, and was published in Saturday's Herald, will be presented by the chairman. The business of the meeting also includes the election of two directors and one auditor.

The Band of the N. S. Wales Artillery will perform in the Botanical Gardens this afternoon (weather permitting), from 3.30 p.m. until 5 p.m., under the conductorship of Bandmaster E. R. Pennell. The following is the programme:—March, "Tannhauser," Wagner; valse, "Les Cloches de Corneville," G. Metra; selection, "Roberto Il Diavolo," Meyerbeer; quadrille, "Olivette," Audran; valse, "Fraises Au Champagne," J. Klein; selection, "Crispino," Ricci; galop, "Mabel," D'Albert. God Save the Queen.

THE BUDGET.

LONDON, April 24.

In the House of Commons to-night, Mr. Gladstone delivered the Budget speech. He stated that the revenue had increased but sluggishly. The revenue from alcoholic liquors was decreasing, but that was a gratifying and healthy sign that workmen's savings were increasing. The surplus from 1881 amounted to £352,000. The estimated expenditure for the current year was £84,500,000, and the estimated revenue £85,000,000. £305,000 would be applied towards relieving the burden of local taxation. A sum of £90,000 would be required for the Government of Cyprus, and £180,000 as extra pay for the forces in Ireland. The increase of the duties on private carriages was estimated to produce a quarter of a million, which is to be applied to the reduction of local highway rates.

In reference to the proposed change in the management of the railway, mentioned in the Governor's speech, it appears that the Government, following the English precedent, intend to propose the creation of two political Under-Secretaries to assist the Minister of Railways in the administration of the department, both to be members of Parliament, but not members of the Cabinet, each Under-Secretary to have immediate supervision of one division of department, and, with the Minister, will constitute a Board for deciding questions of policy. Sir John O'Shanassy has presented a petition to Mr. Bent, asking for the construction of a railway from Glen Thompson to Belfast. The petition stated that the downward trade from the interior to Belfast and Warrnambool would be £583,000 annually, while the exports from Belfast would be £28,000. It also suggested that the money contemplated to be spent on harbour improvements should be devoted to the railway instead. Mr. Bent promised to lay the petition before his colleagues.

OPENING OF THE VICTORIAN PARLIAMENT.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, TUESDAY.

The third session of the eleventh Parliament of Victoria was opened at 2 o'clock to-day with the usual forms and ceremonies. When his Excellency arrived a large crowd had congregated in front of the Parliament Houses. A guard of honour, consisting of 100 men of the Metropolitan Rifles, was drawn up in front of the main entrance. The Governor, accompanied by Lord Hervey Phipps (his aide-de-camp) and Captain Le Patourel (his private secretary), was escorted from Government House by a troop of the Prince of Wales Light Horse. There was a very large attendance inside the Legislative Council Chamber, including an unusually large number of ladies, and the Chamber decorations, which were greatly admired, presented a very imposing appearance. The foreign consuls were in attendance as usual. His Excellency having read the speech, left the House, the usual salutes being fired from the Prince's Bridge battery. The Governor's speech states that a bill embodying important law reforms in matters of procedure, and following the English precedents which have been found to work advantageously, will be brought under consideration at an early period. An amendment of the Companies' Statute will be introduced to enable banking corporations not incorporated thereunder to take advantage of its provisions, at the same time subjecting them to the duties and obligations imposed by that statute. Many urgent reforms connected with the marine service of the colony will be dealt with. These measures will embody the latest Imperial precautionary provisions for the preservation of life and property. There will be also submitted a bill to amend the laws relating to public health, dealing principally with the adulteration of food and drugs offered for sale. Its provisions aim at remedying what is generally admitted to be a great defect in our sanitary laws. A bill to regulate mining on private property, on the principle of giving facilities to the miner for the search of gold, while protecting private rights from undue infringement, will be submitted for consideration. Legislation to amend the Local Government Act and to continue the endowment of municipalities will be introduced. Concurrently with its consideration Parliament will be asked to pass a measure amending the taxation of landed property; this will be based on the principle of charging an annual poundage on a reasonable percentage of the fair capital value of land, the established exemption being still continued. The speech continued:—"The attempt on the life of her Most Gracious Majesty, which, under the blessing of Divine Providence, has been so happily frustrated, has evoked a widespread expression of feelings of loyalty and thankfulness, which have been heartily shared in by her Victorian subjects. Although the Empire is at peace with foreign nations, we cannot calculate on the continuance for many years of this happy state of things. Our defences demand an earnest effort at completion; legislation will be therefore proposed authorising immediate steps to be taken for that purpose, with the object not only of warding off attacks, but also of preventing any panic arising from a defenceless state of the seaboard. The importance of water conservation has been further impressed upon all classes by the long-continued drought in the Northern districts. This calamity has necessitated the carriage of water for long distances, at great expense to the country, and has inflicted serious losses on the agricultural classes. A bill will be submitted to you enlarging the power of the Government as to the expenditure of moneys for the erection of works under the Water Conservation Act of last session, and providing for the principal works in the Northern districts being constructed forthwith, at the expense of the State. A measure consolidating and amending the laws with respect to the manufacture, importation, sale, storage, and carriage of gunpowder, nitro-glycerine, and other explosives will be introduced, based on recent Imperial legislation. The Harbour Trust Bill has already passed the several stages in the Legislative Assembly; and my advisers propose to give their assistance in passing it through the remaining stages, with such amendments to further amend the police offences statute, conferring greater powers on the magistracy, in cases of offences causing personal injury. Some of the existing electoral districts for the Legislative Assembly are inconveniently large, and having become more closely settled since the last Electoral Act was passed are entitled to a larger share of representation. A bill to remedy the anomalies which have arisen will be introduced."

The Council held their ordinary sitting after a short suspension. Dr. Dobson gave notice of motion that a select committee be appointed to prepare an address of congratulation to the Queen on her preservation from assassination. The address in reply to the Governor's Speech was moved by Mr. Stanbridge, seconded by Mr. Ormond, both agreeing generally to the programme. The address was adopted. Mr. Jenner was reappointed Chairman of Committees. The House then adjourned to Tuesday.

The Assembly, after opening, adjourned till half-past 4. On reassembling 81 members were present, the only important change in the position being that Mr. Francis took Mr. Murry Smith's seat in the Ministerial corner. Mr. Hunt asked Sir Bryan O'Loghlen whether in accordance with the example of the Canadian Government he would undertake to move an address to her Majesty the Queen, praying that an autonomous system be conferred on Ireland. The Premier said he was thoroughly in accord with the Canadian Parliament in the matter, and thought that almost every Australian coincided. (Cries of "No.") In reply to Mr. M'Intyre, the Premier said that the Government were prepared to purchase the bridge at Wahgunyah at a reasonable price, but he thought it more desirable that negotiations be entered into with the New South Wales Government, with a view to joint action. His Excellency's speech having been read, Mr. Blackett moved the address in reply. Mr. Connor seconded the motion. Mr. Berry moved the adjournment of the debate, which was agreed to, and the House adjourned till to-morrow.

The most influential meeting ever held in Wilcannia took place last night to form a company to make the Darling River continuously navigable from Wilcannia to Wentworth. Resolutions were unanimously passed in favour of the project. Provisional directors have been appointed and requested to get the company registered at once. The nominal capital of the company is £200,000, in £1 shares. Ten thousand shares were subscribed for before the meeting ended, and 5000 have been applied for since. The promoters are sanguine of success; but it is doubtful if they are alive to the difficulties in the way of a company undertaking such an enterprise.

The INSURANCE FRAUDS at ADELAIDE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ADELAIDE, TUESDAY.

The conspiracy cases were continued to-day. Barker, Hicks, Lubbery, Forsyth, and Morrison were charged with conspiring to defraud the Australian Alliance Assurance Company of £5000. Forsyth did not appear; the rest pleaded not guilty. Forsyth's bail was estreated. Barker, Hicks, and Horton, charged with conspiring to defraud the Colonial Mutual Insurance Society of £1000, pleaded not guilty. The Australian Mutual Provident case, in which Hicks appears as Queen's evidence, was continued. Messrs. Mann, Symon, and Gwynne prosecuted for the Crown; and Messrs. Pater and Linklater appeared for Barker, and Mr. H. E. Downer for Horton.

Counsel intimated that several more witnesses would be called for the prosecution, consequently the case would not likely be finished before Thursday night.

Cross-examination of Hicks by Mr. Downer continued: Witness said that if Weatherhead died at Brighton, Morrison was to get £150. Witness was closely questioned on this and other points, but stuck to his story, and occasionally refused to anwer direct questions, sheltering himself behind such replies as "I cannot remember," or "It is my impression that I did not." He became very impertinent, and accused Mr. Downer of conducting the defence foolishly, and received a severe reprimand from the Judge for giving flippant answers to counsel. He admitted having said on many occasions that the doctors had nothing to do with the conspiracy. When negotiating about the flight he said all he wanted was £500 to guarantee his father and Jones in case his bail was estreated. He wanted nothing himself, and did not care if he landed penniless over the border.

Mr. Symon sought to put in Dr. Beaney's report, published in the Register of March 4, but the Judge refused, as it was not evidence.

Cecilia Sarah Coppage stated that she knew the person called and identified as Barker, whom she saw on board the Drumlanrig, in December; Barker had an invalid going in the ship, and promised that he would give her £10 to take care of him, Dr. Hicks going with the invalid; Hicks visited the ship very often; Barker brought Weatherhead to see the vessel; he was very ill and could hardly speak; subsequently saw him at the hotel in an exceedingly bad state; Weatherhead had not been attended for two or three days, and she ministered to his comfort; Hicks said Weatherhead was worth £10,000, and that if Weatherhead died here the money would go to Barker, but that if he died at home the money would go to his friends in Scotland, therefore Weatherhead was anxious to get home. The witness testified to the helplessness of Weatherhead, his removal to Littlewood's, and his bad condition while there. She identified Forsyth's likeness as that of "Mr. Phillips;" witness left the Littlewood's because she was dissatisfied with their conduct; did not like Mrs. Littlewood prying into Weatherhead's affairs; Mrs. Littlewood took several documents out of Hicks' pocketbook, insurance forms, and a telegram; one form was filled up; Mrs. Littlewood showed her a torn letter and asked her if she could make it out, saying that she got them from Hicks' pocketbook; witness censured her curiosity; she afterwards saw Littlewood coming from Hicks' room shoeless and in a mysterious way; every attention was shown to Weatherhead; he had brandy, rum, and champagne, and took a quantity of those liquors.

Evidence was then given as to the attempt to take a passage for Weatherhead in the Orient steamer, the financial relations of Horton with the Commercial Bank, Barker's acceptance, and other connecting links. Littlewood was called, and testified to the deplorable condition of Weatherhead, who was weak, spiritless, and coughing day and night; witness received 10s. for attending his funeral as a mourner. Mrs. Littlewood also deposed to matters already known, adding that Hicks said "he supposed he would have to pay mother Coppage to hold her tongue, and also witness;" Weatherhead drank a bottle of brandy, one of rum, one of whisky, and four half-pints of champagne in two days.

Mr. Linklater was then placed in the box. He said he went to see Weatherhead at Brighton with Barker in December; Weatherhead signed a document; witness went to Melbourne with Forsyth on March 25; Forsyth did not return with him; he denied saying anything to Hicks about the term of punishment.

In the course of Detective Dunlevie's evidence it transpired that he had been in court after witnesses had been ordered out. The Judge expressed his indignation at the detective having disregarded the order, but the Crown Solicitor took the blame of the omission.

The case for the Crown was now closed, and the Court adjourned till next day. Counsel for the defence declined to say whether they would call evidence.

DECISION UNDER THE LICENSING ACT.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

INVERELL, TUESDAY.

The first quarterly Licensing Court under the new Act was held to-day. There were no applications for new licenses. The publicans held an indignation meeting this morning at the Town Hall, to protest against the decision given by the chairman of the Licensing Board yesterday in refusing a transfer of license because every room in the house over and above the number required by the Act did not contain the specified air space. There was a large attendance, some persons having come a distance of 60 miles. Resolutions were passed unanimously, agreeing to a petition to the Minister of Justice on the point, and it was determined, if necessary, to test the case on the point referred to in the Supreme Court. If the ruling be adhered to, almost every house in the district will be closed.

BATHURST, TUESDAY.

Coursing commenced this morning at Leeholme. There was a good attendance, and the weather was beautifully fine. The coursing was first-class, nearly all the runs being within sight of the spectators. In opening the course, by Lamplighter. The first round for the Derby and Oaks were run through. Longleaf and Lamplighter are considered the best in the former, and for the Oaks Little Buttercup and Leda are favourites for the first round. A cup was on the card, but it could not be gone through. At a meeting of the Rowing Association Committee this evening it was arranged that the intercolonial boat race should be over the usual course—Saltwater River—from Spottiswood's Point to the end of the wharf, opposite the Melbourne Gasworks; crews to start from moored boats. The following officers were chosen:—Starter, T. Young; umpire, E. Carlisle; judge, J. A. Levey. A dinner will be given at Gunsler's in the evening. Mr. Justice Williams, president of the association, has intimated that he will present a silver oar to each member of the winning crew, and continue the practice whilst he holds office.

CRICKET.

ALBERT V. CARLTON.—These clubs met on the Domain last Saturday afternoon, for a one day's match, which resulted—as is usually the case—in a draw. Nunn (Carlton) having won the toss from Gregory (Albert), decided on sending the latter to the wickets, and they occupied them for nearly the whole of the afternoon. Moses compiled 46 in his usual excellent style, his off hits being remarkably effective. G. Tooher, D. Gregory, Folkes, Chizlett, and J. Tooher also obtained double figures; but the bowling was not first-class, Wearne being the only bowler who obtained a fair average. The Carltons entered upon their innings at ten minutes past 5, and when the stumps were drawn at half-past, 12 runs had been scored. The following are the scores as far as the game proceeded:—

FOOTBALL.

ST. LEONARDS FOOTBALL CLUB.—The annual meeting of the above club was held at Kelly's Hotel, North Shore, on Friday evening last, and was in every respect the most satisfactory yet held in connection with the club. The chair was occupied by Mr. W. C. C. Tucker. The secretary read the report for the past season, which, as regards the success of the club in the field, was most gratifying, as may be drawn from the fact of the first 15 having played 11 matches, eight of which had been recorded as victories. After the caps of honour had been presented to the successful members, Messrs. S. Jacobs and L. Solomons, for distinguished play during the past season, the following office-bearers were elected for the ensuing year:—Hon. secretaries, J. Dunsmure and S. Robey; hon. treasurer, E. Armstrong; committee, S. Jacobs, R. Hill, and F. Butler; delegates to the union, J. Dunsmure and F. Butler. After a vote of thanks had been tendered to the retiring office-bearers and the chairman, the meeting terminated.

A well-attended meeting of the Waratah Football Club was held at the Freemasons' Hotel, York-street, last night, W. C. Marshall in the chair. The hon. secretary read a short report of the doings of the committee during last season, after which between 30 and 40 members were proposed, several of them being very good players. The following office-bearers were elected:—Patron, his Worship the Mayor (Mr. J. Harris); president, Alderman R. Fowler; vice-presidents, Messrs. Hogue, Beal, Bethel, and Hinchcliffe; hon. secretary, W. A. Blackstone; hon. treasurer, H. M. Perry; delegates to N. S. W. F. A., Messrs. Blackstone and Portus.

The annual general meeting of the Petersham Football Club will be held to-morrow evening (Thursday) at the Petersham Mechanics' Institute.

The judges in this class were Messrs. Carl L. Sahl and M. C. Machardy, and the steward was Mr. Samuel Ryall. The following memo. was attached by the judges to their report of awards:—"In some classes there was no competition. The judges therefore did not give a prize, but where they 'highly commended' the exhibit, the quality was such that they leave it to the council to give a prize, which they, the judges, would have given had there been a competition. The judges wish to state that they are glad to notice a marked improvement in the exhibits of wine, particularly in 'condition,' in which exhibits a few years ago were so deficient."

SOLIDIFYING WINE.—Certainly the present is a marvellous age for curious inventions. One of the most recent discoveries (according to an English paper) is a process for solidifying wine, invented by an Italian. It is said that from a very small quantity of this extract may be obtained a bottle of generous wine of good taste and beautiful colour. The object is to victual ships and supply armies. A chemist at Marseilles has found a chemical combination by which he can solidify and even crystallize brandy. The brandy, in its new form, looks like alum. It entirely loses its smell. The facility with which it can be transported is the main recommendation of the new invention.

Madame de Rute, née Bonaparte-Wyse, better known as Madame Rattazzi, still defies time, and holds her own in the world where "lionnes" congregate. She astonished the Madrilenos the other night by appearing at a ball in an ivory-satin dress embroidered with a "hunt" of the date of Philip II.—horses, dogs, and hunters—the whole reproduced in natural colours with the most costly silk needlework and artistic design.

OUTRAGES in the WESTERN PACIFIC.

The following copy of a despatch from the High Commissioner for the Western Pacific (Sir Arthur Gordon), enclosing a return showing the number of cases in which an inquiry has been made into outrages committed by natives in the Western Pacific islands, and the action taken in each instance, has been forwarded by the Secretary of State for the Colonies to his Excellency the Governor for the information of the Government of this colony:—

"Wellington, New Zealand, 22nd July, 1881.

"My Lord,—In my despatch, No. 35, of the 18th June, I have said, with reference to the punishment of outrages committed by natives in the Western Pacific, 'I have never, except in the case of the Dauntless, had any previous knowledge of the steps about to be taken by the naval authorities for that purpose.' This, so far as the actual punishment of offences complained of, is the case; but the sentence may be understood to mean, not only that I was unaware of the particular steps about to be taken, but whether any steps were going to be taken at all. This would be an error, and I hasten to correct any such impression. In a great majority of cases of outrages reported to the Commodore, communication has been had with me by letter or telegram before action was taken, as appears by the accompanying return.

"I think that in every case I have agreed with the Commodore on the question whether punishment should or should not be inflicted. The nature of the punishment to be inflicted has not often been communicated to me beforehand; but that imposed by the Commodore, or by his orders, has, when brought to my knowledge, appeared to me in all cases judicious and satisfactory. I have, &c.,

"(Signed) ARTHUR GORDON.

"The Right Hon. the Secretary of State for the Colonies."

COLONIAL IRON.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—It appears strange that sugar-growing, tobacco-manufacturing, beer-brewing, and colonial wine—the latter three articles luxuries—should be protected, and that iron, of which so much is used in the colony, should not.

A glance at the consignees' notices in to-day's Herald ought to be enough to exercise the thoughts and actions of men having the development of the vast coal and iron resources of this colony at heart.

It is certain that the United States of America would never have had her thousands of blast furnaces, refineries, rolling mills and foundries, as well as the many, very many, iron and coal mines feeding the same, but for advalorem duties. In proof of this, I may say that when I was employed by the Weardale Iron Company (Messrs. Baring, Brothers, and Attwood), in the county of Durham, pig iron was sent from the Tow Law Works to Stockton-on-Tees by rail, thence to London, 250 miles by water, and, on being transhipped, thence to New York, Boston, and Philadelphia, by water, paying 30 per cent. advalorem and all shipping and other expenses without loss to the company. Of course this opens up the question—which I would like some more able pen than mine to answer—whether it would not have been better for the Americans to pay the extra price for their own iron, thereby employing tens of thousands of men and boys, and at the same time keeping their money within their own realm?

With the proper kind of blast furnaces, such as was mentioned by the Honorable E. Combes, M.P., in a lecture delivered some time ago in the School of Arts, Sydney, and other appliances coupled with some protection, I am fully persuaded that not one ounce of pig iron, bar iron, or railway and waterworks iron need be imported from Britain or elsewhere.

It is much to be hoped that the iron industry is one of the many that the Premier, on leaving for England, said were to prosper so much during the present decade.

MINING INTELLIGENCE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

TEMORA, TUESDAY.

Coyle's cement, 39 tons, yielded 23oz. It is reported that some very rich quartz country has been discovered on Budgeah Station, about 60 miles from here, and that parties are applying for a lease of 40 acres, which, if granted for virgin ground, will stop miners from taking up adjacent claims. The Shamrock and Eureka stone is reported to be grand. All the dams are at full work. Some of the recent washings are very indifferent, and others very good. The Adelaide Company are going to crush 20 or 30 tons from Head and Aldridge's claim.

ADELONG, TUESDAY.

Mining at Adelong is improving. Several companies are extending work, powerful machinery is being erected, and extra ground applied for. Mr. A. D. Shepard's manager brought nearly 300oz. for the month to the bank.

KIANDRA, TUESDAY.

The Company's Works at One-mile, Sharp's old race, have been cleared out and widened, the remainder being let on contract. The dam has been raised about 30 feet. The race from the dam to the mine will soon be completed, weather permitting; and the stopes to tail race are progressing fast.

NOWRA, TUESDAY.

During the past week about 130oz. of gold, in cake and bar, were deposited in the English, Scottish, and Australian Chartered Bank, Nowra, from the following claims:—Eclipse Company, 70oz. from 130 tons; Homeward Bound, 41oz. from 170 tons; Pinnacle, 20oz., result of a trial crushing.

NYMAGEE, TUESDAY.

Mr Francis Jolly reports that the output for the week ending 22nd instant was as follows:—Ore, smelted, 174 tons, producing 55 tons regulus, equal to 25 tons fine copper. In stock, 498 tons rough, and 280 tons fine and pimple metal, equal to 14½ tons fine copper.

During the past half-year the new steamer St. Leonards has been placed on the ferry, and the steamer Coombra has been sold. Your directors have been constant in their endeavours to induce the Government to grant such facilities as will enable them to erect a suitable stage for the vehicle traffic at Milson's Point, and also to alter the present inconvenient and unsafe landing at the Circular Quay, but regret to say without success. Your directors are, however, hopeful of achieving their object without much further delay, when no time will be lost to place this branch of the traffic on such footing as the increasing trade demands. The plant and steamers have been maintained in an efficient state of repair. The dividend will be payable on and after 1st May proximo.

FREE TRADE AND SHARE BROKERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In Mr. Berry's recent speech he is reported to have said, when speaking of the protection enjoyed by barristers and doctors:—"Were there two better classes protected anywhere? If a man went into a court he could not go outside the roll of barristers; and even the work of becoming a barrister was surrounded by all the difficulties that could be devised." My object in using these words is not for the purpose of discussing the advantages or disadvantages of the legal or medical professions, but merely to apply them to share brokers, and to the basis of their association, which seems to violate free trade principles by raising artificial barriers to the free exchange of stock and shares in an open market. It is not so much the general public, but the capitalist, who is specially interested in this matter, and whilst they remain patient no alteration will take place.

The brokers, it is rumoured—for the articles of their association are known to themselves—have the power to charge 3d. per share commission in all non-dividend paying stock up to 25s. per share, and . per cent. on all stock which is dividend paying, or whose par value is beyond 25s. Now, considering that 3d. to 1s is about the price for one insurance stock, and 1s. 6d. to 2s. the price of another, it is manifestly unfair to charge so much as 3d. per share for effecting a sale of either. Then as to Bank stock returning to investors, at present rates, interest at the rate of four and a-half (4½) to six per cent. (6 per cent.) per annum, this is taxed at the comparatively high rate of one per cent. commission, without any regard to the magnitude of the transaction. Mercantile brokerage is fixed by the Chamber of Commerce at (1 per cent) one per cent. up to £500, beyond that sum only (½ per cent.) half per cent., and the work of mercantile is compared with stock brokers need only be mentioned to be understood. While the share brokers impose conditions on those who seek admission to their ranks, and fix commissions without regard to altering circumstances, capitalists have no remedy, and must submit until some outside opposition brings about an alteration of the present state of things.

The difficulties in the way of establishing a share-brokering business in opposition to a strong association can be easier imagined than described, but once capitalists awake to the fact of these high commissions, doubtless they will ask for an alteration.

Another protection enjoyed by the present combination of share brokers is the peculiar one of keeping buyers' and sellers' names from transpiring. This was not always the case, and at one time it was easily ascertained what and when the broker paid for stock. The present method of doing business cannot be productive of the utmost confidence, which is so essential to a sound business.

In mercantile matters the vendor and purchaser come together. Why not also in stock and share transactions?

musical instruction, or the colonies might simply contribute to the general subscription.

There is a strong movement among colonists in England against the exclusion of colonial products in the "most favoured nation" arrangements concluded with France in lieu of the new treaty. It is hoped that a supplementary convention may be concluded between France and the colonies.

NEWS BY THE COTOPAXI.

By the Orient liner Cotopaxi we have a Plymouth paper to the 11th March, one day later than those received by the last mail received from England, from which we extract the following:—

BRITISH AFFAIRS.

The London correspondent of the Western Morning News writes on the evening of the 10th:—

"Mr. Forster was again under fire to-night. The Irishmen wanted to know why he had arrested Mr. Rorke, Egan's partner, and Mr. Forster refused to tell them, whereupon they went for him. Mr. Rorke seems according to their view the most angelically innocent creature in the whole world, who never made a speech, or had a political idea, and the Chief Secretary's action in arresting him was a crime. It appeared, however, that a still greater crime in Irish eyes was the speech at Tullamore. For that speech Mr. Forster had to stand endless abuse, which culminated as usual in the extravagancy of Mr. Biggar. They found a great deal of the right noble gentleman's philanthropy, but Mr. Biggar believed that he went to Ireland during the famine for the pure delight of regarding human suffering. In this way Mr. Forster is punished for the Coercion Acts. Meanwhile he seemed to mind it not for a moment. He looked as patient as though the object of all this wrath were somebody else.

"I have been able to glance through the important papers respecting the treaty negotiations with France, which will be issued in the morning. Their chief political interest lies in the fact that they show how [illegible]

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COURT.—TUESDAY.

(Before Mr. District Court Judge Josephson and a jury of four.)

CRONIN V. YOUNG.

Plaintiff, a general servant, sued defendant, a married woman and wife of the proprietor of the Three Crowns Hotel, Charlotte-place, to recover £200 damages, for slander. The circumstances, according to the evidence of plaintiff and her witnesses was to the effect that, on the Tuesday before New Year's Eve she gave notice to Mrs. Young, in whose service she then was, that she was about to leave, as the hours were too long. On Friday, when she was about to leave the hotel, an altercation took place between plaintiff and Mrs. Young, and the latter, who was excited and enraged, accused her of taking money out of the till to buy rings. Plaintiff left the house, and upon returning on Saturday night with her brother and a female acquaintance for the purpose of getting a box, and while they were sitting in the bar parlour, Mrs. Young came downstairs and abused plaintiff, following her to the door, and saying to her, "You drunken little thief, go and buy more rings with the money you stole out of my till." Previously to this Mrs. Young said that Dr. Hunter had told her that plaintiff was a drunkard, and she believed she was. Evidence was also given that on the 5th January plaintiff visited defendant's house again to get a reference, without which she was unable to obtain a situation, when [illegible]

His paternal grandmother stated that the boy was 10 years old, and had been deserted by his parents years ago. Latterly he had fallen into bad company, taken to sleep out at nights, and become untruthful and dishonest.

Thomas Dundee, a boy of 17, was charged with stealing a quantity of lead piping, the property of Mrs. Huntley, of Bligh-street. Senior-constable Macdonald met the prisoner in Bridge-street early this morning, and seeing him carrying the lead, and endeavouring to avoid him, arrested the lad. The lead was found to have been stolen from Mrs. Huntley, and the prisoner was sent to gaol for two months.

A number of minor cases were dealt with, and some others were remanded.

EXTRAORDINARY SHOOTING CASE IN MELBOURNE.

(From the Argus, April 24.)

A most determined attempt was made to commit murder and suicide at the Exford Hotel, at the corner of Russell and Little Bourke streets, shortly before midday on Sunday, by a Hungarian giving the name of Arthur Sieber, who was recently employed as an attendant in the Austrian Court at the Melbourne International Exhibition. Arthur Sieber arrived in the colony in one of the steamers conveying the Austrian exhibits to Melbourne in September, 1880, and in the absence of employment he went to seek work in the country. Shortly afterwards he returned to Melbourne, and having obtained a position in the salting-room at Messrs. Farrell and Tyson's, butchers, Russell-street, he took up his residence at Antonio Radovick's Exford Hotel, next door, where Lizzie Maher, a good-looking girl, about 18 years old, was engaged with her sister. Sieber obtained employment from Messrs. Rodriguez and Co., merchants, Flinders-lane, as an attendant at their stall in the Exhibition, but he continued to live at the hotel, and from time to time paid his addresses to Lizzie Maher. He was of a morose and violent disposition, and when under any excitement swore so dreadfully that the girl in December last discountenanced his advances, out of fear that he was of unsound mind, and consequently dangerous. Nothing occurred, however, to cause alarm until yesterday morning. Mrs. Radovick and Lizzie Maher returned to the hotel from attending early mass at St. Francis's Roman Catholic Church, a few minutes before 11 o'clock, and the latter served Sieber, who was standing in the bar, with a glass of ale. He appeared to be perfectly cool and collected, and in his usual manner.

After serving the ale, Lizzie Maher went upstairs. While engaged about her duties in the room she heard Sieber coming up the stairs, and although she had not finished her work she went into the adjoining room for the purpose of avoiding him. He followed her into the room in a few seconds, and went up to the window looking out into the yard without speaking. She left the room, and went into a bedroom nearer the head of the stairs, where he again followed her, and made some appeal to her to be friends [illegible] pronounced the man in a dying state. The doctor also examined the woman, and says she will recover from the effects of the shot. The man Sieber also fired at another man named James Matulich, but the shot took no effect. It appears that the man Sieber has been a lodger at the Exford Hotel for about 18 months, and occupied a room upstairs. The girl Lizzie Maher has also been there for some time as a barmaid. About a quarter past 11 this morning she was upstairs making up the rooms, when Sieber entered the room and deliberately fired a revolver shot at her, which took effect as stated in the foregoing report. Upon searching the room a six-chambered revolver was found with two of the chambers empty, evidently recently discharged. Two other revolvers were also found fully loaded with Eley's patent ball cartridges, a number of which were found in his box, about 100. I am in possession of the revolver and knife. The above are the particulars of the case as far as I could ascertain at the time."

THE O'SHANNASSY FRAUDS.

(From the Melbourne Daily Telegraph.)

At the Central Criminal Court on Saturday, Patrick Holland and John O'Shannassy were charged with conspiring and agreeing with Agnes O'Shannassy and Kate O'Shannassy to obtain jewellery and other goods by fraud and false pretences from various dealers. The articles obtained by them included two silver watches and chain, one gold watch and chain, two fenders, two sets of fireirons, lamps, carpet, pair of curtains, a table cover, and other articles of a similar kind, from tradesmen in and around Melbourne. The prisoners pleaded not guilty. Mr. Chomley, in opening the case stated that the criminal act with which the prisoners were charged was conspiracy to defraud, apart from their obtaining the goods by such fraud. There might be cases in which a conspiracy by several persons to do a certain act would be criminal, but that the same thing done by a single person would not be so. A person vilifying a tradesman's goods and station could be proceeded against in the civil courts, but several persons conspiring to do the same would be criminally chargeable. The woman Agnes O'Shannassy was the mother of the prisoner O'Shannassy, and Kate O'Shannassy was the sister. These two had escaped being arrested. [illegible]

[illegible]

The jury found the prisoners guilty on all the transactions, with a recommendation to mercy on behalf of the younger O'Shannassy. The prisoners were remanded for sentence.

ACCIDENT AT THE PARRAMATTA STEAMERS' WHARF.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I desire to give a denial to the statements in your paper of to-day respecting the accident at the Parramatta Steamers' wharf.

The lady landed from the proper gangway of the steamer Emu on to the wharf, and she walked across the wharf and into the water on the opposite side; her head and shoulders were not immersed, and she was instantly caught hold of and drawn out by two of my men, who were standing by her when she was on the wharf.

The statements that the bow of the steamer only reached the wharf; that the lady overbalanced herself and fell off the plank; that she sank once or twice; and that some boys in a boat close by rescued her, are totally false. So little did it appear that there was any blame attachable to the men of the Emu, that no complaint has been made to me on the subject, either by the lady, or any one on her behalf, though the accident occurred 10 days ago.

If your correspondent had represented the matter to me it would have been inquired into, and a proper remedy applied; and if the lady had suffered injury through my neglect, or that of my officers, she would have had redress at my hands.

I am, &c., C. E. JEANNERET.

CONTINENTAL GOSSIP.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT "STELLA.")

PARIS, FEB. 10.

The excitement created by the great billiard match that has been going on here between the American player, Mr. Slosson, and the French player, M. Vigneaux, became more and more demonstrative as the contest went on. On the last night of the contest, the approaches to the cafe in which the players were established were so densely crammed that locomotion was impossible, and people had to cross to the other side of the Boulevard. When the news of Mr. Slosson's victory became known outside the building, the disappointment was immense, and the crowd reluctantly dispersed, with a sort of patriotic regret. It was said that M. Vigneaux refused to shake hands with the victor: the fact is that he had so confidently expected to win that his opponent's victory quite staggered him, and he did not even see the hand which Mr. Slosson held out to him, when the result of the long contest had been declared. But he speedily recovered himself, offered his hand, in turn, to the victor, and the two opponents, with their backers and friends, adjourned to a splendid champagne supper, which passed off with the utmost gusto and good fellowship.

The surviving Rubinstein (the greater of the two musical brothers) is about to give a couple of concerts here, in the well known Salle Erard. Since the death of Thalberg and the retirement of Liszt, Rubinstein ranks as the leading pianist of this place.

People are going wild in Rome over a wonderful girl-violinist, Teresa Tua, who, though only 16, appears to have obtained the most absolute command of that first of instruments. The young artiste, on her first appearance, performed the compositions of Vieuxtemps, Beethoven, and Wienawski in a style of such perfection as to amaze and enchant all who heard her. She is now about to give a series of public performances in the Italian capital. At the same time the English organist, Mr. J. W. Best, of St. George's Hall, Liverpool, who is at Rome for his health, at the request of Liszt, has just given an organ-recital in the American Church in the Via Nazionale, at which the British and German ambassadors, the Belgian Minister, all the notabilities of the musical world of Rome, and a crowded audience, were present. At the conclusion of the performance, Liszt, Sgambati, Rotoli, and a number of others, went up to the organ and warmly congratulated the English performer.

Curiously enough, while the Jews are being so infamously persecuted in Russia, threatened with persecution in Germany, and not over safe from similar injustice in Austria, the first and second prizes in the competition at Vienna, for an Austrian national hymn, have been taken by two Jewish students' Vienna, over the heads of 1570 competitors. That the proud German people should owe even their patriotic songs to Jews—hated, not for their religion, but because they thrive better than their "Christian" neighbours—will doubtless be regarded by many among them as an unspeakable humiliation.

The performance of M. Massenet's opera, "Herodiade" (in which the hero, John the Baptist, is represented as in love with Herod's stepdaughter, dances with her in public, and falls a victim to the jealousy of the Tetrarch's wife, who is desperately in love with him), has been forbidden as impious in Switzerland. Here, where almost nobody ever reads either the Old or New Testament, people know so little of the Gospel narrative concerning John the Baptist, that they are not at all shocked at the extraordinary liberties thus taken with the Gospel text, and the opera is having a brilliant "run" in Paris at this time.

A Mr. Jackson, a young American, said to be a relative of Stonewall Jackson, has become the bosom friend of the King of Wurtemberg. He has sworn allegiance to his new country, in which he has been made a baron and a privy councillor, and is covered with the decorations bestowed on him by the King, the Emperor of Austria, and the King of Saxony.

FEB. 17.

It really seems as though we should escape the "hard weather" so confidently predicted by the weather-augurs for the winter now verging into spring. The past season has been the driest of the present century. We have had several weeks of persistent fog worthy of London. We have had hoar frosts in profusion, we had half-a-dozen drops of frozen moisture somewhere about Christmas, but not a single drop of rain during nine weeks, until the sudden sousing downfall of two days ago. Everything betokens the coming on of that treacherous danger, an "early spring," which exposes gardens and orchards to the possible ruin of "late frosts." Our ignorance of meteorological law (if the meteorological department has any law) contrasts curiously with the rapid advances that have been made in so many other departments of nature.

The business world of this region is still painfully agitated by the recent violent overturn of banks and agents de change. Numerous suicides have testified to the severity of the crash, and those who are behind the scenes, and consequently able to gauge the position of their neighbours, predict new failures and a new crop of suicides.

The social and artistic life of this brilliant capital nevertheless goes on apparently much as before.

The last of the opera balls takes place to-morrow night. A grand ball was given last night at the Elysee. Ambassadors, ministers, and official people in general, have been giving grand dinners, receptions, calls, and soirees. We have had a Dog Show, also the annual Cattle Show, both well attended by the public. We have had some astounding piano playing by Rubinstein, whose fingers seem to be moved by electricity; several new plays, or one or two revivals of old favourites, have been drawing crowded houses, despite the nervous apprehensions of fire, which are but the natural result of the frightful catastrophes at Nice and Vienna.

The energetic impresario, M. Pasdeloup, a strong believer in Wagner, has been giving portions of several of that composer's operas, his admirably-trained orchestra and several fine singers having done their utmost to secure the success of this new attempt to naturalize the genius of Wagner in France. The most successful of the selections thus offered to the admiration of Parisian dilettanti have hitherto been the portions of "Tristan and Iseult," possibly owing to the wise precaution of M. Pasdeloup, who had prepared a short explanation of the composer's ideas and intentions embodied in this work, thanks to which the listeners were able to comprehend something of the extraordinary "effects" which, without such an explanation, usually mystify and irritate non-German ears and minds. The "prelude" to this work, and the concluding scene, "The Death and Transfiguration of Iseult," were generally applauded. The character of this last movement is large, grand, and impressive; but its orchestration sins in being so loud that it completely covers the voice of the heroine, so that Mdme. Panchioni, who took this part with equal zeal, talent, and success, finding that her utmost exertions failed to render her vocalisation audible, was fain at length to renounce the vain attempt, and "did" the rest of her "role" with pantomime only, to the evident amusement of those of the audience who were near enough to the songstress to perceive that she was only "doing the motions."

The execution of the "Funeral March for the death of Siegfried," from "The Twilight of the Gods," was less successful. M. Pasdeloup had neglected to print off the necessary "explanation" of the composer's intentions, and the audience, despite its apparent desire to give the much-contested innovator a fair hearing, was literally unable to "make head or tail" of the strange massing of discords inflicted upon them.

Two other Wagnerian enthusiasts, M. Colonne, at the Chatelet theatre, and M. Lamouroux, at the Salle du Chateau d'Eau, have also been giving selections from the musician they desire to bring Paris to honour. The first has given selections from "Rienzi," consisting of the overture, the chorus of the "Messengers of Peace," the "Prayer of Rienzi," and the finale of the third act. This work, in the first manner of the composer, in contrast with his later creations, astonishes those who only know him by his second and third styles. It abounds with melody, has numerous charming airs, beautiful duets, all put together in the style usually recognised as "musical," and might easily be taken for the work of an Italian composer. Wagner is believed to despise and contemn this earliest of his productions on account of the grace, rhythm, sweetness, and clearness which recommend it to ordinary mortals, but which he vituperates as carnal, sensual, unworthy of beings possessed of minds. This work is said to be regarded by its author as something to be ashamed of, to be left out of sight and forgotten.

M. Lamouroux is giving the first act of "Lohengrin," by way of initiating the Parisians into Wagner's third manner, and he has been, perhaps, the most successful of the three Wagnerian apostles. This first contains some of the finest pages of the obstinate, conceited, and wayward genius who might have have been one of the very greatest of composers. "Lohengrin" is the most dramatic of Wagner's creations, and undoubtedly contains beauties of the highest order. The performance was eminently successful, and the fact that the cacophonies in which he delights have not prevented their author from writing some magnificent pages must be admitted by all who have listened to the performance in question.

Several highly interesting exhibitions are now open, and attract many visitors. The Artistic Union Club, which has its rooms in the Place Vendome, is holding its annual show-off. The French Water-colour Society is also exhibiting a goodly array of exquisite works, showing that this delightful branch of the pictorial art has made great progress since the splendid productions of the English school exhibited here in 1855 roused their emulation by the revelation of the possibilities of water-colour drawing. One of the most interesting of the exhibitions of the season has been opened in the elegant rooms of the Liberal Arts Club, in the Rue Vivienne, which has been generously lent to the Society of Lady Painters by the members of the club. The society is one of many that are now being formed here on the model of those in London. It is in its infancy, but promises well. Some of the lady painters, already well known to fame, are conspicuous by their absence, but some consolation is afforded by the presence of others previously unknown, whose pictures indicate strong originality, and an equally strong and poetic feeling of nature. The most remarkable of the new candidates for public favour are Mdlle. Breslau, Mdlle. Feurgard, and Mme. de l'Aubiniere. The first of these ladies sends eight or 10 fine studies of heads and portraits, in pastels and oils, full of life and vigour, harmonious in tone, admirably executed, and instinct with the characters of the sitters. A charming portrait of a little girl with a doll is greatly admired; also a portrait of a young man, excellently drawn, sober in colour, simple and natural in pose; a head of an old man is also much admired.

The most striking work by Mdlle. Feurgard is a portrait of a young girl in black, very striking in effect. But the main attraction of the room is the superb collection of water-colour drawings by Mme. de l'Aubiniere, daughter of the well-known water-colour painter, Mr. Steeple. This lady, though a formed and finished artist, who has vanquished all the difficulties of her art, and penetrated all its secrets, has never before exhibited in France. Her sixteen pictures are marvels of skill and of refined and poetic feeling. A large lake scene, of a size rarely seen in water colour, has all the intensity of an oil with the most exquisite transparency, and is full of the mystery and melancholy of the twilight hour. The masterly handling of the details in this work, as in the lovely wood-scene, with its exquisite figures, in the broad masses of reedy foreground against a fairy-like picture, is simply wonderful, and is calling out the most emphatic expressions of admiration from French artists and critics. Two other wood scenes are little marvels of intensity and subtle colouring; a charming harvest scene, with figures wending their way to the distant village in the evening light, is a poem visible; a haymaking subject, with willows around a pool, is so living and real that one seems to hear the rustling of the silvery leaves whose shadows dance and tremble on the water. The same artist exhibits a large drawing, seen, a year or two ago, in a place of honour, in the Royal Academy of London. It represents a village in the Alps, with purple hills against a sunset sky, and wonderful studies of varied foliage on the banks of the lake in the centre of the scene.

Mme. Lavillette has a fine sea-piece with a brilliant effect of sunlight on the dancing and splashing water. Mme. Deworth Breton has an interior, with a girl playing on a harmonium; one of the works in the room. Mrs. Anne Ayrton has an admirable head and an excellent "Flowers and Biscuits" that one would fain bite into. Mlle. Robiquet has a fine portrait of a lady; Mme. Felicie Schneider, an equally fine portrait of an elderly lady, the head gracefully enveloped in a gauzy veil. Mme. Muraton contributes fruit and flowers, splendidly executed. Altogether, lovers of art will congratulate the Society of Lady Artists on the brilliant success of this their first exhibition.

Among the many odd trades followed in this capital is that of the "artist in whipped cream," who honours the Latin Quarter with his presence, and who visits the "creameries" frequented by the students, where, for a modest gratuity, he executes in whipped cream the portraits of his clients, a landscape, a sea-piece, a study of animals, or a bunch of flowers. Another industrial of the nomadic order is an old soldier in cleanly but threadbare attire, with an order on his left breast, who has amassed a large fortune by asking persons in the street for "ten sous, to buy some tobacco." Other industries, equally parasitic and unclassable, are carried on here. A homeless ragamuffin, on being arrested by the police, a few days ago, on the outskirts of this city, described himself as "a turner of umbrella-skeletons in brass." At Neuilly there are "Ostend oyster beds," the water of which is brought from the North Sea and is changed every week. Views of Ostend are hung all round the "oyster beds," perhaps to keep the oysters from being homesick. In the Rue Cambronne there has just been started an establishment for furnishing that favourite delicacy, Meuse crayfish, the water and crayfish being brought fresh every day from that river, beloved of all who like crayfish.

Who shall say that popularity is an empty sound? Victor Hugo, a short time ago, after making some calls, took a cab and went home. On offering his fare to the driver, the latter refused it, saying that the honour of driving Victor Hugo was sufficient, and after delivering this statement, gave his horse a flick with his whip and drove away. By chance, a few days afterwards, the old poet took a cab, and found he had lighted on the same cabman, so, on getting out, he insisted on the latter accepting a piece of twenty francs. But Jehu was equal to the occasion; he carried the money straight to the office of Victor Hugo's paper, Le Rappel, and gave it to a subscription started by that sheet. "Devil of a cabbie!" cried Victor Hugo, on learning what the man had done with the money, "What can I do to gratify him? Suppose I invite him to dinner!" And he did so, to the immense delight of his humble admirer, who, since he has dined at the poet's table, has become the admiration and envy of all his fellows in this city.

FEB. 24.

The carnival has been kept with much spirit in all its usual haunts, Paris excepted. Even "The Fat Oxen" have been paraded at several points; and masks, symbolical chariots, processions with music by day, with lighted torches by night, balls, and various orgies, have been plentiful. But here the return of Shrovetide has been only signalized by a few scattered masks, mostly children; the spirit of the old festival, like Pan, is "dead," and there is small likelihood of its revival. Nice and Venice now seem to have almost a monopoly of the mantle of the vanished spirit of these Saturnalia, though Naples, also, does something in the same line. But even in those cities the "fun" lacks the old pungency; without voted funds and active encouragement of the local authorities, the old festival would probably soon disappear, even from places where, thanks to this artificial fostering, the affair still lingers.

An odd but instructive comment on the faint attempts of individuals to get up a glimmering of the old fete, is afforded by the fact that, on Shrove Tuesday, the day for the tomfoolery alluded to, a suicide was reported for every hour of the day.

Suicide is greatly on the increase in Europe, and more especially among all classes in France, and among the soldiers of the German army, where excess of rigour in discipline, and the lack of amusement and subjects of interest to relieve the dull monotony of barrack life, have led to so great and rapid an increase of this sad result of the system of conscription as to have created no little anxiety and alarm among the heads of the army and of the Government.

We have had a curious "tempest in a teapot," apropos of the highly-successful water-colour exhibition now being held here. M. Alexandre Dumas, a great collector, bought of the painter Jacquet some years ago a picture, to which he took a fancy on seeing it in the painter's studio. He gave for it the higher price which the artist fixed for it, but had been unable to obtain. The painting, though very clever, was criticised by many of Dumas' friends as somewhat too free in point of attitude and suggestion; and Dumas asked Jacquet whether he could not make some slight modifications, that would have rendered it more "proper." To this demand Jacquet replied that the painting satisfied him, was very well as it was, and that he would not consent to re-touch it. Dumas did not insist, but some time afterwards he exchanged it for another painting not open to any such objection. Jacquet was furious on learning that Dumas had disposed, as he had a perfect right to do, of this picture; and, by way of revenge, he painted a picture representing Dumas as a Jew-dealer in an Oriental bazaar, and sent it in for exhibition to this gathering. The committee in charge of the affair did their utmost to persuade Jacquet not to exhibit this silly bit of ill-temper; but as the artist is a member of the society, it was impossible to prevent his doing so. When M. Lippmann, Dumas' son-in-law, saw the insulting water-colour in the exhibition, he lost his self-command and hammered it with his cane, shattering the glass and lacerating the drawing. Dumas, on his side, had applied to the police, and obtained an order for the removal of the obnoxious sheet, which has been taken down and sequestered, while the law is being appealed to on the subject. Meantime, M. Jacquet, whose course is universally blamed, is suing M. Lippmann for the destruction of his property, and the double lawsuit growing out of this peculiarly Parisian incident is being looked forward to with amused eagerness by the friends of both parties.

M. Jacquet, in this piece of ill-nature, has not given any proof of ingenuity. Horace Vernet, in his well-known picture of La Smala, at Versailles, represents, among other figures, a Jew of sordid appearance, running away with a casket of jewels, that the spectator may easily, if it so please him, imagine him to have stolen. This Jew is a perfect portrait of the late Baron James de Rothschild, formerly head of the great family of money-kings, who had incurred the displeasure of the painter. The old banker, however, was far too shrewd to take offence at the artist's way of revenging himself.

An example of a similar thinskinnedness on the part of a simply private individual is afforded by the suit now pending between Emile Zola, the renowned head of the "Naturalist" school of novelists, and a party, previously unknown to the Parisian public, who is angry at finding that Zola has given his name to one of the imaginary characters in his last novel, and demands the seizure of the edition, and the substitution of another name in place of his, with damages for every day that passes until this is done. The quick wits of Paris are "poking fun" at the plaintiff in this curious suit, and are hunting up in the directory the names of the characters in all the leading novels of the day—so many of this, so many of that, showing that an author, unless he revives the plan of inventing descriptive names for his characters, or of numbering them, could never be sure that half-a-dozen protests would not be made by people bearing the name he had chosen, and that the profits of his pen would not be liable to be swallowed up by the infliction of the damages claimed by their homonyms.

The death of a venerable spinster, Mdlle. Fallix, at the ripe age of 86, reminds one of a famous lawsuit of a different character, successfully waged by this lady, one of the most persevering plaintiffs who ever waged legal war with the Government of their country. Mdlle. Fallix was the owner of the bay which yields the famous sands of the Mont Saint Michel, of which the Government had taken possession. For sixty years she was at law with the State to recover possession of her property. The Government frequently proposed to compromise the claim, offering her at first two millions (of francs), and then three millions; but she persisted in her claim, and three years ago, aided by the late M. Albert Joly, barrister, the bay, valued at twelve millions of francs, was restored to her. She has not had any long enjoyment of her wealth; but she has had the satisfaction of recovering her rights, and of leaving a legacy of four millions of francs to the solicitor who served her in bringing her long litigation to a successful close.

The horrible storm which has just washed away the whole of the costly embankment of Calais, and flooded the country inland, naturally quickens the desire of the advocates of the Channel tunnel to see that great engineering and humanitarian enterprise brought to a successful termination. The emptiness of the absurd notion of its being possible for France to send an army to England "unbeknownstlike," through the small subterranean tube that is to do away with the horrors of the Channel passage, has been so thoroughly exposed by the outspoken declarations of Count Von Moltke, the greatest living strategist, that one's patriotism need no longer hesitate to wish well to the brave fellows who are cutting the tunnel in the grey chalk, with the roof of that stratum and the entire depth of the sea above them. The grey chalk is no harder than Stilton cheese, so that the boring is easy. And the chalk chiselled out to form the tunnel is not "waste," but a valuable article of commerce, the sale of which will furnish a noticeable item in the list of "profits" resulting from the carrying out of the scheme.

While this grandiose preparation is being made for balking the sea sickness of its victims, it is said that a submarine vessel, realizing the clever imaginings of Jules Verne, has been built by a Hungarian inventor, and will shortly be exhibited to the admiration of the European public. It is lighted by electricity, contains air for 15 hours' consumption, and an apparatus for renewing the supply. It is supposed that this new invention will be of immense service, not only by offering a means of journeying under the ocean instead of upon it, but also as being available for searching after and destroying torpedoes in time of war.

Another project now being seriously discussed in connection with storms, shipping, and the enormous loss of life and property at sea, is the plan of "oiling the sea," as a life-saving application. Many authentic and most striking cases in proof of the calming effect of oil on waves are stated by the advocates of this idea, and a careful investigation of the subject is being made. It is claimed that enough is already known in regard to the calming effect of pouring oil on troubled waters to justify some decided action towards its general adoption in the case of ships' boats and shore lifeboats, the cheapness and simplicity of the expedient rendering its application easy.

The Carnival is not the only relic of past days that will soon be lost to Paris. The famous Mabille Garden, that formerly figured so prominently among the characteristic features of Paris life, is offered for sale, and will doubtless be soon covered with the splendid six-story buildings that give so imposing a frontage to the streets of this capital. The reputation of this beautiful garden is too well known to need comment here: but the coup d'œil presented by the alleys and groves of this renowned enclosure, full of flowers, splendidly illuminated, and filled with elegantly dressed people, was most charming. And though its aims and uses were what the world knows them to have been, the most perfect decorum was de rigueur, and innocent people, if such had wandered in by mistake, might have come and gone without the slightest suspicion of anything amiss.

Not very far from the Circean groves and gardens thus doomed to disappearance is the mansion formerly belonging to the great novelist, Balzac, and his wife, nee Countess Rzewuskey. The widow of the renowned writer has filled this house with art-treasures, both rich and rare; but, like the late abominable old Princess de la Moskowa, she lets no one see the treasures she has amassed. The collections of the bad old Princess have passed to her eccentric daughter, the Duchess de Persigny; those of Madame "de" Balzac (as she calls herself, though her husband's name lacked the aristocratic particle) will probably be sold, as she has sold her mansion for 500,000 francs to Baroness Solomon-James de Rothschild.

It is known that very many of the leading bankers here have suffered terribly by the downfall of the Union Generale, houses almost rivalling the great money-kings having hard work to keep up appearances and tide over the tremendous losses of this month. That the Rothschilds have suffered heavily is rather suspected than positively known; but their financial basis is so broad and deep that they are not only standing the storm, but are helping to hold up others. The terrible smashes that have followed one another like the waves of a driving sea, all over Europe, have recalled to mind the popular song which was sung all over Paris by those who, having nothing to lose, could afford to laugh at the losers, when Law's famous "South Sea Bubble" exploded, somewhere about a century ago, and which ran thus:—

"Monday I bought shares;
Tuesday I made a lot of millions;
Wednesday I beautified my house;
Thursday I set up a carriage, and put my servants into wigs and livery;
Friday I went in all my glory to a ball;
Saturday, being utterly ruined, I was thankful to get myself admitted into an asylum."

The splendid success of Rubinstene, duly chronicled here, has brought to the front several other foreign pianists, anxious to profit by the excitement created by the great Russian virtuoso for showing that although Rubinstene is now admittedly the first pianist of the day, there are others who are treading closely on his heels. Heymann (Dutch, and a pupil of Hiller), and Wienawski, a Pole, are two pianists who may justly take their place in the front ranks of the devotees of "the parlour orchestra." They have all been giving delightful concerts; curiously, enough, the leading French pianists—Plante, Ritter, Ketten, and de Beriot—appear to have withdrawn into their tents, leaving the field to their foreign rivals. But they will doubtless reappear next month—the classical season of concerts in Paris—with furbished arms and brilliant crests, to uphold the artistic reputation of French pianists.

The English institution of dinner-giving is decidedly taking root here. Every few days a new club is formed with the intention, among other aims, of dining together at stated intervals. The latest of these numerous additions to the list of Paris clubs and dinners is that of the natives of Toulouse resident in this city. They are numerous, number many men who have made their mark in various walks—politics, art, literature, &c.—have taken a provençal title, print their programmes and menus in the tongue of King Rene and the Troubadours, and employ only that mellifluous speech at their gatherings. It is certain that prandial communion has a tendency to beget a certain sort of fraternal sympathy, when it does not lead to the clashing of personal peculiarities, as in the case of one of Napoleon's marshals, who, on receiving the news of his downfall, exclaimed, with intense satisfaction, "At least, he'll never again take all my share of the gravy!" In the beginning of their respective careers, Napoleon, who was never very fond of roast mutton, had vexed the soul of his chum by scooping up all the gravy, whenever they had roast mutton for dinner. The long succession of dangers and honours which the two had shared together had failed to allay the rankling sense of former unfairness and injury in the marshal's mind.

At a recent dinner of the syndicate of the wine trade of Paris, the president denounced the inquiry into the quality of wines recently made by the Prefecture of Police. "It is unfair," said this gentleman, "to single out a single dealer, or a single firm, when we all do the same thing. Let us boldly admit, gentlemen, that we all, without exception, makers and dealers, water our wine! Let us tell the public that we do this, that we cannot help doing it, because at the low prices you insist upon we could not otherwise sell you wine except at a loss, and also because, if we did not water our wine, we could not possibly supply the demand for it." This very candid confession was warmly applauded by all present, who cried in chorus—"Quite true! we all do it! we all do it!"

THE SALVATION ARMY IN PARIS.

The Paris correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph, writing on March 9, says:—"To-night the Paris branch of the Salvation Army held a special review of its forces on the anniversary of the first establishment of the 'Army' in France. The meeting took place in the large hall used as 'headquarters' on the Quai Valmy, in the midst of one of the poorest quarters in Paris, and on the outskirts of Radical, irreligious Belleville. A more suitable field for the peculiar labours to which the army devotes itself could not have been chosen than this poverty-stricken neighbourhood. The spacious building in which the nightly meetings are held calls for no particular description, being a plain whitewashed wall with a gallery at one end, and with a platform for the speakers and the choir. Decoration there is none, beyond a few Scripture texts painted on the walls, a group of tricolour flags with the red banner of the army suspended over the platform, and the initials of the French Republic with the letter 'S' on the blind which conceals the large window over the entrance. Being a special service, the audience were in their places punctually at the hour indicated—a quarter past 8; but stragglers kept coming in until the hall, which holds some 1200 people, was crowded to excess. This number was made up principally of apparently poor workmen, their wives and children. The men came in their blouses or work-day clothes, kept their caps on their heads, and, except that they abstained from smoking, in obedience to a notice on the door, behaved with the freedom and ease of a music-hall audience. The earnest manner in which most of those present joined in the hymns, however, proved that they were not mere spectators, and I was astonished to notice that many rough, unkempt, brutal-looking men, whom one would not have expected to find assembled, except at a Socialist meeting or in a wine shop, sang the canticles by heart without reference to the book. The service was conducted principally by Miss Booth, the leader of the French branch, a tall, thin, earnest-looking young lady, whose father, 'General' Booth, had come over from England especially for the anniversary meeting. Various other officers, male and female, were present, all wearing the uniform of the army adorned with a coat of arms and the letter 'S,' while some wore badges or armlets bearing the words 'Armée du Salut.' The choir having taken seats at the back of the platform, behind the chief officers and the leading musician, a cornet player, the proceedings were opened by Miss Booth, who read out the first verse of a hymn with the refrain, 'Tout est bien; oui, tout est bien.' The congregation having sung this to a cornet and violin accompaniment, another verse followed, and so on to the end. Extempore prayers were then offered up by some of the lady officers, to which the congregation in all earnestness repeatedly responded 'Amen.' Other hymns, all set to popular tunes, one of which I recognized as closely resembling 'Malbrouck s'en va-t-en guerre,' or 'We won't go home till morning,' followed, and then a number of French converts related the circumstances of their being 'saved.' Frequent applause greeted those revelations, and an occasional mocking laugh was quickly silenced by the energetic speakers. Indeed, the most remarkable feature of the whole proceedings was the astonishing degree of order maintained among as rough a collection of people as it would be possible to find in any capital. This is the more curious, as all the leaders of the movement, although speaking French fluently, were marked by a strong English accent, which would have excited derision had the crowded audience been less earnestly disposed. Up to the moment when I was obliged to withdraw, not the slightest disturbance had taken place, and the well-behaved crowd of ouvriers, although not enthusiastic, seemed determined to maintain order should brawling be attempted. The army has evidently taken hold of a large number of people during its year's existence. No other form of religion could have boasted such an assembly of the lowest class of Parisians as that collected in the hall to-night, and though the proceedings to an unaccustomed eye and ear were decidedly eccentric, it must be acknowledged they fully achieved a deserved success."

In L'Arronge's popular comedy, "The Craftsman," which has been running for some time past at the Wallner Theatre in Berlin (says the London Telegraph) one of the dramatis personæ, who serves as a butt for the other characters, and is the involuntary hero of half-a-dozen ridiculous "situations," is called Voss. His name is used as a catchword in the piece, frequently ejaculated in derisive or contemptuous accents, as the case may be, and invariably eliciting laughter from the audience. Voss is by no means an uncommon patronymic in the Fatherland, and it appears that one of its genuine owners, annoyed that his name should nightly be made fun of in public, and encouraged to believe that he could obtain redress for his grievance by M. Duverdy's recent triumph over Emile Zola in a similar case, called upon L'Arronge one morning last week, and requested that gentleman, somewhat peremptorily, to alter the name of the character in question without delay, as otherwise he, Herr Voss, should be compelled to institute legal proceedings against him for wilfully subjecting that name to public scorn and contumely. After a few seconds' reflection, L'Arronge, assuming a sympathetic tone of voice and expression of countenance, observed, "This is indeed painful. Am I really to understand, highly honoured sir, that the exclamation 'Herr Voss! Herr Voss!' which recurs so continually in the course of my comedy, is the cause of deep distress and poignant vexation to so worthy, so respectable, so delicately sensitive a person as yourself?" "That is so, and to an immeasurable extent," replied Herr Voss. "I am grieved to hear it," rejoined the Berlin dramatist, "the more so because, as far as I can see, yours is a grievance for which there is but one remedy. Take my advice, well-born Herr Voss, and—change your name!"

Ample material for a sensational novel might be gathered from the strange and adventurous career of the venerable Marquis le Doulcet de Pontécoulant, who died a few days ago at the advanced age of 88. During his long life this remarkable old nobleman had followed half-a-dozen callings, and achieved distinction in all. As an officer of the "Grande Armée," he served throughout the Russian campaign of 1812 under Napoleon I., and was taken prisoner at Tarantina, remaining two years in captivity. He took an active part in the crowning struggles of the Hundred Days, which culminated in the definitive overthrow of the First Empire at Waterloo. Shortly after the Bourbon Restoration he emigrated to South America, became a leader of the Brazilian insurrection, was captured and condemned to death, but contrived to escape from prison on the eve of the day fixed for his execution, and returned to his native country as a stowaway in a British ship. A few years later he played a conspicuous part, as a commander of a free corps, in the Belgian revolution, and subsequently fought like a hero on the popular side throughout the Parisian émeutes of July, 1830. This, however, was his last appearance as a combatant and political agitator. The remaining half-century of his life was devoted to literary pursuits and the study of music. For many years he was a copious contributor to the periodical, "L'Art Musical," chiefly upon the subjects of acoustics and the construction of orchestral instruments. By birth an aristocrat, whose family politics were essentially of the Legitimist variety, he made his début in society as an ardent soldier of the Empire, soon to be transformed into a conspirator against monarchical rule "wherever found," and finally to tame down into a musical reviewer.

The LAST DAY of the PARLIAMENTARY VISIT to the NORTH TERRITORY.

(BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

BANQUET BY CHINESE IN PALMERSTON.

One of the most pretentious displays of the hospitality of the Chinese residents in the Northern Territory was given on Tuesday afternoon, March 21st, when the Parliamentary party and leading representative residents of Palmerston, responding to their invitation, attended, at Pickford's Hotel, what was in truth a grand banquet. The edibles were served mostly in English style, and knives and forks took the place of chopsticks; but some of the appointments, and the scene altogether, were truly oriental. The Government Resident occupied the chair; but his vis-a-vis was a very intelligent Chinese merchant, who spoke the English with as much fluency as foreigners from other countries than China generally attain unto. When the time for toasting came, the duty was heartily undertaken alike by Celestial and European. The tribute to her Majesty was loyally paid, and after it had been recorded,

Mr. PRICE, S.M. (Government Resident), proposed "The Emperor of China." He sturdily combatted assertions unfavourable to the good behaviour of the Chinese. He asserted that the alarm which some people had felt at their great preponderance in number over the Europeans had proved to be utterly groundless. As a matter of fact, when shipload followed shipload of Chinamen, they went peacefully into the gold country, and caused no disorder whatever. They had caused no extra work to be thrown upon the police, they had been law-abiding in every way. When they first came they were untaxed, but after the Customs duties were imposed they readily contributed their full share to the revenue without a single grumble. It had been said that the Chinese escaped their fair share of taxation, but the fact was that they not only paid the gold duty equally with the European, but they also paid duty on rice, while flour came in free. He was glad to be able, in the presence of such distinguished visitors, to bear testimony to the good character of the Chinese as a body throughout the territory. (Cheers.) It had been said, as an argument against the Chinese, that they took their gold out of the country and did not remain to develop its resources; but he contended that a European making a fortune by gold-digging would not be content to spend the rest of his days in the territory, and so the two races were equal in that respect. The rate of recorded crime had not perceptibly increased since the Chinese came amongst them; and he was doubtful whether the new gaol, though he had recommended its construction, would be needed for a while. He bespoke for the Chinese—for their courtesy and their good behaviour at all times—the fair play which true Englishmen gave to every man everywhere. The Chinese had opened their ports to us—we had opened ours to them; and we should remember when honouring their enlightened Emperor, that whilst our forefathers roamed the woods unclad, the Chinese had attained to a comparatively high degree of civilization. (Cheers.) They had accepted so much the changed condition of things that their old traditions, their old exclusiveness, was fast breaking down, and one proof of that was that an Englishman could now safely travel through any part of China. He hoped that equal facilities would be given to Chinese travellers in every country boasting English rule. (Cheers.)

Mr. Price, after the toast had been drunk, read the following significant address, prepared for presentation to the Minister and his party, as the focus of Chinese opinion in the Northern Territory:—"On behalf of the Chinese residents in the Northern Territory of South Australia we desire to express our pleasure and satisfaction at meeting you as representatives of the Parliament governing this fine colony, and further to assure you of the respect we have for the laws of your country. The Chinese are a peaceable race, and wherever they have settled out of their own dominions they have always endeavoured to keep and respect the laws of the land in which they have lived, and though in some colonies our countrymen have been abused by the lower classes, we are glad to notice that the educated and well-instructed people have treated us with that generosity which is extended to other nationalities. We view with satisfaction the fact that your Parliament in its wisdom have decided not to restrict the immigration of our race to this portion of Australia. We claim that, had it not been for the influx of Chinese to the territory it would not now present the encouraging and prosperous position which it maintains. As we think we have assisted in the development of the mining interests in no small degree, we think we are entitled to point out to you that the imposition of the export duty on gold is most oppressive and unfair, and we would urge upon the Government a reconsideration of this question. We would also suggest an alteration as to the collection of miners' rights. It has frequently been urged that we are a migratory race, but hitherto no inducement has been held for us to settle in this country. Had there been, many of us, no doubt before now, would have been cultivators of the soil, instead of being mere labourers in your gold-fields. As we well know that vast portions of this settlement are good for agriculture, we would like opportunities to be given us of settling and making permanent homes. If grants of 50 to 500 acres could be made to us on easy terms of purchase, cultivation of tropical products would be entered into, which would ultimately prove of great benefit to the entire community. And again, we would further urge, that if we become investors and settlers we should be entitled to a voice in choosing the representatives of the country in your Parliament."

The Chinese VICE-CHAIRMAN then, in a graceful and perfectly grammatical little speech, proposed the healths of "The Minister for the Northern Territory, and the Ministry."

The Hon. J. L. PARSONS, in responding, expressed his pleasure at the compliment paid to him, and said he accepted the magnificent reception given to the party that day and at other times, as an expression of the desire of the Chinese settlers to recognize and respect the institutions and the laws of the Australias, which so many of them had made their adopted home. The desire of the Government was to so manage the affairs of this northern portion of the continent of South Australia that its resources might be developed, and that those who had cast in their lot here might share in the prosperity which would be the result of increased capital, and, of course, an increase of industrial occupation. He need hardly say that, as far as the present Ministry were concerned, they had given special attention to the territory. It was only fair to say, too, they had had the advantage of some others. They had to deal with the territory at a time when a large amount of attention was being directed to it. (Cheers.) Just about that time there was one of those tides in the affairs of nations, through which they were enabled to deal with the Northern Territory in an entirely new and different way from those their predecessors in office could adopt. (Cheers.) They were enabled at once to inaugurate a bolder and more progressive policy, and the presence of the Parliamentary party was an expression of the opinion of South Australia that the people of the Northern Territory were worth visiting, that they had large resources, and that it was the duty of South Australia proper—or the mother colony—to do all they could to make that territory attain and keep that position of importance which it was bound to hold in future. (Cheers.) He considered that whoever might have been Minister of Education for the time being would have done less than his duty if he had not during the recess visited the Northern Territory. Since the party had been here he hoped they had impressed the residents with the idea that, while glad on all proper occasions to enjoy themselves, they commenced their stay with business and work. (Cheers.) Since they had landed they had gone through what was called the mineral portion of the territory as far south as it had been developed to any extent. They had met with a great deal of kindness, received great hospitality, and throughout the whole of their travels had been readily furnished everywhere with reliable information, so that they had had every opportunity of forming an independent judgment upon the natural resources of the whole of the Northern Territory. He believed that they would all return to Adelaide with the feeling that not half of the wealth of the country had been told them, and that in future debates in the Parliament on Northern Territory matters, there would be a very large amount of interest and also a large amount of belief in the future that had been sadly lacking in the debates and legislation of past years. One of his main objects in coming to the Northern Territory was to be able to give his colleagues an intelligent opinion, based upon observation, of the best way of opening up the interior; because he felt that it was absolutely impossible, even though the gold-fields and reefs were of exceptional richness, that they could be profitably worked, whilst their working was handicapped with the enormous expenses of wages and of food. (Cheers.) The country must be opened, and he had come up to see whether its circumstances warranted the construction of a railway. (Cheers.) That was proposed some years ago, when a surveyor came from the south, and a survey was made. He felt now that in going south he would be able to press, as a result of his observations, upon his colleagues the claims of the Northern Territory in connection with the Transcontinental Railway. He had in view to recommend to them that at any rate for 150 or 200 miles south the railway should be constructed. (Loud cheers.) Of course he was only one of six, and the Cabinet and the Parliament might be of a contrary opinion to his own. It was for the Parliament to decide whether or not the railway should be made, but he certainly would recommend it. (Cheers.) He believed that his colleagues would be disposed at any rate to listen to his advice, and they would be fortified by the views of the gentlemen who had accompanied him. (Cheers.) Referring to the address, he wished to say that the Chinese were in his opinion a very peaceable race, and he heartily endorsed what had been said of their long history and the long-enduring civilization they boasted. He had always respected and reverenced the integrity of the Chinese Empire. They could boast of scientific men, philosophers, and systems of morality, when our ancestors were wandering about in barbarism. No one could look at the Chinese Empire, and no one could regard its history, without feeling that, as in the past so in the future, both by numbers and also by intelligence and activity, the Chinese were bound to be a great factor. (Cheers.) So far as the gold duty was concerned, it had been one of the first interests of the State to derive a revenue, and at the time the bill was passed its object undoubtedly was to make the large Chinese population contribute in a direct way to the revenue, in return for the protection of life and property they enjoyed. He admitted that a tax upon products was bad in political economy; and he thought if they were to reduce the duty to a nominal sum, so as to secure a record of the amount of gold raised in the Territory, it would be very easy to make up the deficiency in some other way if necessary. (Cheers.) The miners' rights, he also thought, might be issued quarterly, so as to avoid a hardship which had been pointed out. (Hear, hear.) There must be some mistake in the minds of the Chinese with regard to the cultivation clauses. He hoped it was thoroughly understood that with the payment of 7s. 6d. an acre and the cost of survey the obtaining of land was as open to the Chinese as to anyone else. There was also the Plantation Act, by which, by the payment of sixpence a year and the fulfilment of the cultivation clauses, land could be obtained for the growth of tropical products. There ought not to be any difficulty in the way of those who were prepared to invest their capital and take up land. He was pleased that he had come to the Northern Territory, and he would ever cherish pleasant recollections of it and of its people. (Cheers.)

Mr. T. BURTT proposed "The Parliament," and urged that as the Chinese contributed their fair share to the taxation they were entitled to representation in Parliament.

Mr. BRIGHT, M.P., in responding for both Houses of Parliament, referred to the Council's action in negativing the proposition to place a poll tax on Chinese coming to the Northern Territory as a proof of the necessity of a second Chamber to check hasty legislation. He felt it a duty to come to the Northern Territory and see it and its wants for himself. He had been pleased with his visit, and he would, on his return, be able, when matters affecting the Territory were brought before the House, to deal with them more intelligibly than he could have done if he had not paid the visit. For example, if a proposition were made for representation of the Northern Territory, he would not oppose it. He saw the important aid the Chinese had given in the development of the place so far as it had been developed. The European population, he understood, were dependent upon the Chinese for even their supply of fish, as well as of vegetables. (Hear, hear).

Mr. FURNER, M.P., was extremely gratified with his visit. As to the future effect it would have upon his Parliamentary action, he would be most happy to do ample justice to the Northern Territory in the matter of local representation. The interests of this portion of the colony were too great to allow of its being simply tacked on to another district, and he thought it should have independent representation. (Cheers.) He had taken especial interest—because he represented a large mining district—in the mineral deposits of the Territory, and he was greatly pleased with what he had seen in relation to that industry. With regard to the gold duty, he coincided with the opinions of the Minister, and concerning the point raised by Mr. Burtt with reference to the representation of Chinese in Parliament, he need only remind their hosts that they had but to pay the naturalization fee of 10s. to be entitled to the privileges of British subjects. (Cheers.)

Mr. BAGSTER, M.P., spoke appreciatively of the hospitality which had been extended to the party equally by Europeans and Chinese, and expressed his idea of the importance of the work the party had accomplished during their trip, and his hopefulness of great advantage accruing from it to the colony.

Mr. PRICE proposed "The Vice-chairman," remarking that not only were the Europeans indebted to the Chinese for their fish and vegetables, but for their beef also—in times past an unknown luxury. But for the Chinese consumption the cattle would not be imported from Queensland. He expressed the opinion that the trip now closed would be of immense advantage to the Territory. Partly through it, as it called attention to the resources of the place, the Territory would soon be looked upon by South Australia not as a white elephant, but as a bright gem. (Cheers.) People talked of a separation of Northern from Southern Australia, but he did not believe that anything of the kind would take place. Before long South Australian money, which went to Mauritius and elsewhere, would come to the Northern Territory for sugar and other tropical products. Year by year during his six years of the Government Residency he had looked forward to this, and he saw the first dawn of its fulfilment when the Minister controlling the Territory spoke of visiting it. The place only needed to be seen to be appreciated. (Cheers.) As to the railway, and what Mr. Parsons had said about it, he felt sure that if the Minister recommended the railway they would have it. (Cheers.) He believed the Parliament would uphold him, and that the transcontinental railway of South Australia would in time be quite as great and important as that connecting the Atlantic and the Pacific. (Cheers.) The world was north of South Australia, and they would have to work towards it, and not away from it.

In conjunction with all the company, he gave the sentiment, "May God speed the party on their return journey," and the honouring of this and several other toasts concluded the business of the entertainment so gracefully arranged and so well carried out by the Chinese.

DEMOCRACY AND CULTURE.

In the Sydney University Review Dr. Badham writes as follows:—"But if we desire to make that which is good in democracy as operative as we can, if we would have our people at once proud of their equality of rights and yet submissive to fixed principles and laws, we must offer them, along with the liberty which they cherish, some other object which shall claim their reverence, and so habituate them to self-control. That object cannot be birth or title, and heaven forbid that it ever should be money. We have, indeed, that other object already amongst us, for we are daily witnesses to the powerful influence which great talents, or what are believed to be such, exercise over all classes in this colony. But supposing that this admiration for a powerful intellect, exhibiting trained and tried intellect of a whole class, not an exclusive class, but one to which anybody may belong (if nature has endowed him for the purpose, and the opportunities of mental discipline have been open to him), in the first place the people would possess a safeguard against their own too credulous acceptance of the pretensions of ready-witted impostors, and real talents would be restrained from attempts to delude the public by false glitter and exorbitant professions of their own merit. A highly educated class is a check upon charlatans by simply withholding its belief in them, and by setting to others an example of the like caution. But is order to raise up such a class, what machinery is to be employed? The mere possession of knowledge on any subject will only act as a restraint on imposture in that particular subject. For the half-dozen weather prophets that we now have we should have many hundreds but for one Russell at the Observatory. One good analyst like Professor Liversidge keeps in check a great many unauthorised but enterprising persons who would be glad to undertake the same office for a trifling consideration. But the more serious social impostors, the loud and fluent declaimers on all subjects human and divine, whose politics are a contradiction of history, whose language is a burlesque upon eloquence, whose arguments slap logic in the face, can only be kept down by men whose minds have been taught by long experience how easily error may creep in upon the unwary or impetuous reasoner, how readily falsehood may assume the garb of truth, how grandly sounding principles have often proved to be only nonsense in masquerade. The study of language is the study of thought; the study of history is the study of political truth; the study of great authors is the study of the development of mind through the different phases of civilisation. When we see the same feelings, aims, affections, anxious doubts and topics of consolation in the literature of bygone times, the thought of our permanent humanity and of the ineffaceable identity between the soul of the past and the soul of the present, makes us thoughtful, reverent, social, patriotic. I do not much admire words of modern coinage, or old words used in modern applications, but the word culture corresponds to such a real thing, and fits it with such exactness, that I will venture to use it, as embodying all that has been mentioned above, and to declare that the larger the class which partakes of this culture, and the more deeply they are penetrated with it, the better for the country of which they are citizens. And furthermore that the more steadily the University adheres to the traditional functions of a University, by making classical study the instrument of culture, the more fully will it answer the purpose for which the people has instituted and endowed it.'

SLAVERY IN BRAZIL.—The returns of the slave population of the province of Rio Janeiro have been made up to the 30th of June, 1881. On the 30th of September, 1873, when the special registration closed, there were 301,169 slaves in the province, which number was increased by 32,423 afterwards brought into the province, increasing the total of registrations to 333,592. This number, however, had become reduced to 276,195 on the 30th June, 1881, by 46,374 deaths and 11,023 emancipations, the decrease in seven and three-quarter years being 57,397, or nearly 21 per cent. Of the 276,195 117,251 were from 10 to 21 years of age, 149,099 of 21 to 60, and 9845 over 60; 203,037 were engaged on farm work. The Anglo-Brazilian Times, commenting upon these returns, says:—"If, however, we wish to arrive at the full emancipatory effects of the law of September, 1871, excluding from such effects the 9403 private emancipations and the 46,374 deaths, we would have had to add to 1626 official emancipations the 64,027 free children, owing their freedom to that law, who were existing on the 30th of June, 1881, the date of the return. In fact, the law of 1871 was not an abolitionary Act, its leading motive was only to provide for the gradual extinction of slavery by cutting off its feeders. As regards the probabilities of more active measures on behalf of the 1,300,000 existing slaves in the whole empire, whose sole present chances of liberty lie in the scanty operations of the Emancipation Fund, and the considerably wider but still very limited effects of private benevolence, the known sentiments of the Premier and of, perhaps, a majority of the Chambers give little countenance to the belief in a Government measure; but it is current that the promotion of such a measure will be advocated at an early date by Senator Silveira Martins, who can command at least five Liberal votes in the Chamber of Deputies."

MORE TELEGRAPHIC NOVELTY.—A Californian claims to have invented a means whereby telegraphic communication can be kept up between a train in motion and the stations in front and in rear of it, as well as with other trains on the same line. The proposed method is very simple—upon paper, but whether it will be found practicable is quite another matter. It is this. Two wires are stretched along and over the track, upon which two small wheels travel; these wheels are connected by wires with a telegraph office on the train, and move as it moves. By this plan it is asserted that a constant current of electricity can be maintained between the two stations between which the train is travelling passing through the office car. From this time forward a new era in railway locomotion is to be opened up. The costly and cumbersome apparatus of signal boxes, with all their paraphernalia of rods, chains, posts, and semaphores, now in use, is to be abolished, and this comparatively inexpensive method substituted. This will be welcome news to shareholders. On the other hand, all collisions are to be rendered impossible and become mere dreams of the past. This will be glad tidings for the railway traveller.

OF ABOUT 556 SQUARE MILES, with 4000 CATTLE.

MORT and CO. have received instructions from Messrs. JACOB and WILLIAM LOW to sell by public auction, at their Wool Warehouses, Circular Quay, Sydney, about the end of MAY, 1882.

Full particulars can be obtained on application to MORT and CO., Circular Quay, Sydney.

POSITIVE and ABSOLUTE SALE of that magnificent Estate on the DARLING DOWNS, QUEENSLAND, WESTBROOK, WEDNESDAY, 26th of APRIL, 1882.

In consequence of the retirement of M. SHANAHAN, Esq., Sen., from participation in the affairs of the firm of SHANAHAN and JENNINGS.

WILKINSON, GRAVES, and LAVENDER, Sydney (in conjunction with Messrs. B. D. Morehead and Co., Brisbane, and Messrs. Dal. Campbell and Co., Melbourne), have received instructions from Sir Patrick Jennings and John Shanahan, Esq., to sell by public auction, at the Exchange Rooms, Sydney, THIS DAY, 26th of April, 1882,
THE WESTBROOK ESTATE, QUEENSLAND, comprising a compact Block of 82,000 ACRES of FREEHOLD LAND, being the very cream of the Darling Downs, which have been justly described as the "Garden of Queensland." The soil is of the very richest description for either agricultural or pastoral purposes, being of volcanic character, black, red, and chocolate, whilst the climate is unequalled in salubrity, owing to the altitude of the Darling Downs, which in this locality attain an elevation of about 2000 feet above the level of the sea.
The WHOLE ESTATE is splendidly fenced, and subdivided into 37 paddocks, all of the most substantial and permanent description. It is watered by the Westbrook Creek, Spring Creek, Gowrie Creek, and Oakey Creeks. It is intersected by two main lines of railway, the railway station at Westbrook Crossing being only about 5 miles from the mansion and within a few hours of Brisbane, whilst the railways now in course of construction will bring Westbrook into direct railway communication with Sydney and Melbourne.
The HOMESTEAD is a mansion built of massive bluestone, replete with every possible convenience for the residence of a gentleman's family. The other improvements have been made with sound judgment regardless of cost, and are "perfect."
There are at present about 76,327 sheep of a high class upon the property, also a selected herd of cattle. The horses have been bred from the very best strains of stock procurable of their different sorts, whether for draught or saddle. There are some fallow and other deer, which have been running on the estate for the last 10 years; these will also become the property of the purchaser. It may be mentioned, further, that, in the opinion of one of the most eminent geologists in the colonies, the strata underlying the rich volcanic soil of this part of the Dowling Downs are coal-bearing, and coal of prime quality is worked at Allora, a short distance south. It will be seen therefore that the
is justly entitled to the designation it has so long borne of being one of the finest, if not the finest in Australia, and the circumstances of a rich soil, an unrivalled climate, and a central and convenient position and inexhaustible capabilities, combine to render the property in every way a most desirable investment.

THE TERMS WILL BE LIBERAL.

With the station will be sold 76,327 SHEEP, or thereabouts, of the following descriptions:—

This property is close to the celebrated Burburgate Estate, of which it formerly formed a portion, and has a frontage of upwards of 14 miles to the Namoi River, commencing at the township of Narrabri, and extending back some 20 miles to the Nandewar Range, and is bounded on the north-west by Killarney.

F. L. BARKER (in conjunction with KING and CUNNINGHAM, Melbourne) has received instructions from the owners, Messrs. FIRIE and LLOYD, to OFFER FOR SALE at PUBLIC AUCTION, at THE EXCHANGE, SYDNEY, at 2.30 p.m. THIS DAY 26th APRIL,
The above highly improved and well-known property, together with 31,838 SHEEP, as under :—
1499 wethers, 2-tooth
4807 ditto, 4-tooth
4811 ditto, 4 and 6-tooth
1668 ditto, 6-tooth
1639 ditto, full mouthed
1498 ewes, 2-tooth
3277 ditto, 2, 4, and 6-tooth
6946 ditto, 4, 6, and full mouthed
377 ditto, full mouthed
5108 weaners
208 rams,
and
670 head of cattle (more or less)
109 horses (more or less), and all BUILDINGS, FENCING, and IMPROVEMENTS thereon.
The AREA of the STATION is about 170,000 ACRES, in which is included FREEHOLD LAND 18,952 acres, CONDITIONAL PURCHASES 6064 acres, with MINISTER'S CERTIFICATE, making a compact block of some 25,016 acres FREEHOLD LAND.
The COUNTRY consists of extensive well-grassed OPEN PLAINS, with HERBAGE of the most fattening description, intersected by lightly timbered ridges and open country on the hills on the north-eastern boundary of the station. The river frontage consists of open box and apple tree flats. Belts of myall surround the plain country, and clumps of the latter are interspersed throughout the runs, whilst large tracts of timbered country have been ringbarked, and afford excellent pasturage. The sheep are all healthy and sound and never diseased, the rams used are from the celebrated flocks of "Collaroy," Cox's, Mudgee, and Gibson's, Tasmania; 13 of the latter, purchased in July last, cost £300. The weight cut at last shearing was 5lb. 13oz. of clean greasy wool, and at the last realization, at November sales in London, averaged over 11d per lb., the previous year averaging 1s 3d per lb. The sheep have been carefully culled for years past by Mr. Kyrie Graham. The cattle are a well-bred mixed herd, and are all healthy and quiet. The bulls principally from Warrah. The horses are well bred, stanch, and sound, and well up to all station work, and include an entire known as Struck Oil. The buildings consist of homestead, embracing house of 7 rooms, kitchen out-offices, and garden, with water laid on; also, store (newly erected), with cemented floor, woolshed, drafting yards, and all usual station buildings, all of a very superior character.
At out stations there are (4) four boundary riders' houses (very substantial), four drafting yards, very complete for working the sheep paddocks. The fencing has been very carefully erected, and consists of 12 miles of wire netting (outside the ordinary wire fencing), newly placed, 19½ miles of paling fencing, rendering 2 sides of the enclosed portion of the runs dog proof; 76½ miles of 5 and 6 wire (mostly 6 wire) sheep proof fencing, and 3 miles in, in all 107½ miles dividing the property into (29) twenty-nine paddocks.
The improvements include tanks, dams, and wells, ensuring an abundant supply of water at all seasons on the country back from the river. The number of wells is 15, four (4) having windmills, and one worked by windmill, all in working order. ELEVEN (11) dams and tanks have also been constructed in suitable positions in various paddock, securing an ample supply of water to all parts of the runs. The personal supervision of the resident partner has been exercised in the making of all the improvements, and no expense has been spared to render them of the most complete and substantial character.
The runs are also intersected and watered by the Baloora, Eula, Bibblah, and Maul's Creeks.
The Auctioneers, in offering this fine property, would direct special attention to the large area of judiciously selected freehold land, making one large block, and securing the station from all fear of further selection, thus presenting great security to intending investors. They also would mention that the Railway to Narrabri (shortly to be completed) passing some five (5) miles of the head station on the south side of the Namoi River will afford great facilities for the speedy transit of goods to, and fat stock from the station.
For further particulars, with lithograph of the station, and additional information, apply to the Auctioneers, 88, Pitt-street, Sydney; or Bourke-street, Melbourne.
N.B.—LITHOGRAPHS of the run are now ready, and with printed terms and conditions of sale, can be had on application at the Auctioneers' offices, Sydney and Melbourne.

UNDERWOOD SUBURBAN SUBDIVISIONS, and, as usual in all sales under the direction of the trustees, the whole must be absolutely cleared on the sale day on the liberal terms announced.
The Land is very favourably situated for building purposes, and being intersected by the railway into about equal portions, every site is within easy distance of the station, and from the nature of the elevated, gently undulating formation, commands extensive varied views of the surrounding scenery, bounded by the Parramatta River and the beautiful Pennant Hills; indeed, no brighter or more charming position for suburban residences will be found in this justly favourite locality.
The roads have all been cleared, and each site is clearly defined and marked with numbered pegs, so that no difficulty will be found by intending purchasers in making their selections. And as option will be given at the sale to take consecutive lots, there will be no limit to the area they may desire to secure either for a residence site, or for speculative purposes.

N.B.—A portion of the estate has been resumed by the Government for the new Railway Station and other Government buildings.

BINNEGUY STATION.

GWYDIR DISTRICT.

2500 CATTLE.

4000 ACRES LAND.

PITT, SON, and BADGERY have received instructions from D. Eaton, Esq., to sell by auction, at the Exchange, Sydney, on FRIDAY, the 28th April, at half-past 2 o'clock,
The above well-known fattening property.
Binneguy is situated on the Big River, about 20 miles from Moree, joining Messrs. McDonald and Co.'s Mungi Bungi.
The Water Supply has never been known to fail, and the country is admirably adapted for either cattle or sheep.
The Run is well improved, and the best portions of it have been secured by some 4000 acres of freehold and conditional purchased land.
The Cattle are a quiet well-bred lot, and number about 2500 head.
The Horses, which number about 120 head, are an especially good lot, the stud of draft mares being quite equal to anything in New South Wales.
The auctioneers can recommend this property as an excellent investment to a small capitalist, and would invite inspection prior to sale.
Full particulars may be obtained on application to the agents,
PITT, SON, and BADGERY, Sydney.

VALUABLE SHEEP PROPERTY,
WARREGO DISTRICT.

PITT, SON, and BADGERY have received instructions from Messrs. John K. and Ross R. Doyle to sell by auction, at the Exchange, Sydney, THIS DAY, 26th April, at half-past 2 o'clock,
The Morabilla Station, situate on the Bokhara River, to which it has a frontage of about 11 miles, and comprising the blocks—
Bundabulla East, No. 1
Ditto ditto, No. 2
Morella
Morella Back
of an estimated area of 103,000 acres.
Together with about 50,000 high-class sheep, of the following ages and sexes:—
9500 ewes, 1 year
9500 ditto, 2, 3, and 4 years
5000 ditto, full-mouth
500 ditto, studs, mixed ages
500 ewes, weaners

25,000
16,500 wethers, 1 year
7,670 ditto, 2, 3, and 4 years
500 ditto, weaners
320 rams
10 ditto, studs

25,000

50,000
The run, which is situate about so many miles north of Brewarrina, joins Milroy, Quantambone, and Bundabulla, and is acknowledged to be quite equal to anything in the district. The owner from long experience estimates its capabilities at quite 60,000 sheep.
It is amply watered by its frontage to the Bokhara River, and also by seven splendid tanks.
It is subdivided into 11 large and 5 small paddocks, the fencing being first-class, the greater portion having been but lately erected.
There is also a comfortable homestead, with all the necessary outbuildings, yards, plant, &c., for the efficient working of the property.
The sheep have always been carefully culled, and the average for several years past has been over 5lb. of scoured wool.
The lambs shorn last year gave 1lb. 10oz. of scoured wool, and a portion clipped in the grease gave 3lb. 4oz.
In submitting this valuable property for public competition, the auctioneers would strongly advise buyers on the look-out for a good safe investment to go and inspect. The country, improvements and stock are all undeniably good, and a return of at least £35,000 may be looked for within a few months of purchasing.
Full particulars as to terms, &c., and letters to inspect, may be obtained on application to the agents.
PITT, SON, and BADGERY, Sydney.

BUNABA and CURRAGUNDI STATIONS,
GWYDIR DISTRICT.

PITT, SON, and BADGERY have received instructions from John Town, Esq., to sell by auction, at the Exchange Sydney, on FRIDAY, the 28th of April, at half-past 2 o'clock,
The Bunaba and Curragundi Stations, situate between Moree and Mungindi, and comprising the blocks of runs—Bunaba North, A and B; Bunaba South, A and B; Tarrawa or Dindena, Mungi Waterhole, Big Lather West, Warren North, and Warren South,
of an estimated area of 180,000 acres,
together with about 9000 cattle and 3000 acres purchased land.
These stations, which adjoin Bucknell's Yarrawa, Doyle's Caloona, Robertson and Co.'s Midkin, Gilchrist, Watt, and Co.'s Goonal, and others, were taken up by the present owner upwards of 35 years ago, when nearly the whole country was open, and they comprise an area of as fine sheep country as is to be found in New South Wales. The northern portion, known as Bunaba, is all high blue grass plain country, beautifully timbered with myall, rosewood, and coolibar, and abundance of large and small saltbush. The southern portion, known as Curragundi, is lower country, and a large area of it is irrigated yearly by the overflow of the Big River. Vegetation on this is of the rankest description, and it is simply impossible to give an estimate of its carrying capabilities. A large extent of country has hitherto been unavailable, owing to no provision having been made for water, and from the fact that the runs have been stocked with cattle only, the country may almost be looked upon as being in its virgin state, and without inspection no conception can be formed of the wondrous growth of grass and herbage.
The runs have frontages of about 10 miles to the Boomi River, which is permanent, 11 miles to each side of the Gill Gill Creek, 11 miles to Gingham Watercourse, and 18 miles to Big Lather Watercourse, which could be made permanent by artificial means. All the best water and facilities for making same have been judiciously secured by land purchases, and by a liberal expenditure of money in the erection of dams the carrying capabilities would be immensely increased.
The runs are all fenced, and subdivided into three paddocks by substantial wire fencing, a portion of which is sheep proof; there is a comfortable homestead, nice garden, with water laid on, also all necessary outbuildings, yards, paddocks, &c.
The cattle have an excellent reputation, and are well liked by the trade, and, as there are a good number of marketable bullocks fat and fattening, a good return may be looked for during the ensuing year.
In submitting these valuable properties for bona fide sale, the agents would strongly advise capitalists on the lookout for first-class sheep country to go and inspect, for the runs might readily be improved and stocked with sheep and the cattle fattened off.
Particulars as to terms, &c., may be had on application to the agents,
PITT, SON, and BADGERY.

FOR ABSOLUTE SALE.

GRAVESEND STATION,
Gwydir District.

PITT, SON, and BADGERY have received instructions from Messrs. J. McDonald and Co. (in consequence of the retirement of one of the partners) to sell by auction, at the Exchange, Sydney, on FRIDAY, the 28th of April, at half-past 2 o'clock,
The Yagaba or Gravesend Station, situated on the Gwydir or Big River, adjoining Binneguy, and comprising an area of 76,000 acres, together with about 4000 acres purchased land
and
4000 very superior cattle.
The station has a frontage of about 12 miles to the Big River, and there are besides three dams and two tanks out back. The river frontage is well secured, the purchased land comprising all the best of it. The country is all thoroughly sound, fattening, and healthy, and when held by the late proprietor, and used for fattening purposes, the stock always commanded the highest prices ruling in the Sydney market.
The improvements are all good and substantial. Upwards of 40 miles of wire and post and rail fencing have been erected, making 4 large and 3 small paddocks. There is a good house and garden, stable, hay shed, cultivation paddock, &c.; in fact, everything requisite for the proper and economical working of the property.
The Cattle are an exceedingly choice, well-bred herd; great attention has been paid to them of late years, and no expense has been spared in obtaining the best of bulls. There are also about 20 stock horses.
In submitting this valuable property to public competition, the agents would desire to point out the very exceptionable advantages it possesses. The country is good, the stock ditto, it is well improved, and well watered, so that the purchaser will find all the comforts of a home, combined with a lucrative investment.
Terms, exceedingly liberal.
Any further information may be had on application to the agents,
PITT, SON, and BADGERY, Sydney.

GOULBURN.

SATURDAY, 29th April.

FOR SALE, ON THE GROUND,
by
FINLAY and CO.,
Goulburn,
with
GEORGE WITHERS and CO.,
Sydney,
at 1 o'clock,
the celebrated
LANSDOWNE HOMESTEAD,
with
26 ACRES OF BEAUTIFUL GARDEN LAND, GRAZING FIELDS, &c.

This beautiful property, overlooking the city of Goulburn and within five minutes' drive of the Railway Station, has only been in the occupation of three tenants during the last 30 years, viz., the late Hon. Wm. Bradley, Colonel Roberts, and S. Emanuel, Esq.

FINLAY and CO., Goulburn, in conjunction with Messrs. George Withers and Co., of Sydney, have received instructions from W. Swanson, Esq., to sell by auction, on the Ground,
LANSDOWNE, GOULBURN,
on
SATURDAY, 29th APRIL,
at 1 o'clock sharp,
LANSDOWNE HOUSE and GROUNDS, which comprise about 26 acres of the most beautiful and pleasingly situated lands in the south, far surpassing in variety of beauty anything the eye can rest upon along the line, either west or south, and which from its altitude (2100 feet), and highly bracing atmosphere, render it at once the very acme of salubrity.

The HOUSE is situated on an EMINENCE overlooking the city, and has for its aspect Willow Grove, the Mulwarree Ponds, the lovely Plains of the South, and in the distance the properties of Messrs. Faithful and Gibson.

The MAIN BUILDING is commodious and substantial, and has an eight-feet verandah on three sides, with out offices, bathroom, massive stone billiard-room, roomy stables, and outbuildings, comprising numerous stables, sheds, and other conveniences for pure bred stock, which renders it at once the most complete and perfect little property in the suburbs of this PROSPEROUS CITY.

There is an unlimited supply of water laid on from a dam holding three million gallons (from which pipes are laid to irrigate the grass lands of the Homestead) and supplied by the rainfall and windmill pump erected on the Mulwarree Ponds, flowing at the base of the property through the Willow Grove.

TO SYDNEY RESIDENTS AND OTHERS.
There is no inland city or town in the colony to compare with Goulburn for salubrity of climate—sweet, pure, bracing, country air—without which perfect health cannot prevail, whilst it possesses all the comforts, luxuries, amusements, schools (public and private), places of worship of all denominations, cathedrals and chapels, bishops and clergy, building and agricultural societies; in short, all the attractions of a Metropolis with the comforts and benefits of a country climate, and within six hours' drive of Sydney.
By everyone it is admitted that Goulburn in its present prosperity and progress exceeds that of any other inland city in the colony.
This property lately changed hands with 80 acres of land, the present proprietor purchasing the whole in order to offer LANSDOWNE with a smaller portion of land as it now stands (26 acres), and subdivided the remaining 54 ACRES INTO MAGNIFICENT BUILDING SITES,
particulars of which are added, and which will be submitted in allotments on the same day and place.
THESE BEAUTIFUL ALLOTMENTS vary in size, and are so subdivided that buyers may have any sized portions. They overlook the city and plains, and are beautiful sites for Gentlemen's Residences or Homes for the people. In a very short time they will obtain very great value, arising from the rapidly increasing population incident upon the opening of the railway to Cooma, extended traffic, and the development of public works. As an investment they stand unrivalled.
Terms of Lansdowne at sale; and of allotments—10 per cent. cash deposit, and 10 per cent. in one month, balance at 6, 12, and 18 months, WITHOUT INTEREST.
A SPECIAL TRAIN will leave the Redfern Station for Goulburn on SATURDAY, April 29 (the day of sale), at five minutes to 7 o'clock in the morning, returning on the same day at 6 p.m. Tickets for the double journey, 10s each, to be had from Messrs. GEORGE WITHERS and CO., 126, Pitt-street, Sydney, the cost of which will be refunded to purchasers.

At the PRESENT TIME BUNGARRIBEE is WELL WATERED, the supply being from a successive chain of ponds forming a CREEK running through the Estate, independently of the well-known EASTERN CREEK,
which bounds the property on one side, as well as from a number of large and deep waterholes sunk to the clay beds, and now FULL of WATER.

☞ The IMPROVEMENTS at BUNGARRIBEE consist of an old and well-built COMMODIOUS FAMILY RESIDENCE, having large accommodation, besides the out-buildings which consist of a well-erected BRICK BARN, STABLES, MEN'S HOUSES, COACHHOUSES, PIGGERIES, fowlhouses, &c., &c.
There are also several WOODEN BUILDINGS, and a COMFORTABLE 6-ROOMED COTTAGE.
Around the Homestead there are flower and kitchen gardens, vineyard, and orchard. The OUTLOOK extending over the FARMS, PADDOCKS, and CLEARED PORTION of the ESTATE.

_ Inspection of BUNGARRIBEE is invited by the Auctioneers, who will be glad to arrange with Mr. Cleeve to meet intending buyers at Blacktown station.

HARDIE and GORMAN have been favoured with instructions from
I. K. CLEEVE, Esq.,
to sell by public auction, at the Property Sale Rooms, Pitt-street, Sydney, at 11.30 o'clock,
THIS DAY, 26th APRIL,
THE BUNGARRIBEE ESTATE and HOMESTEAD,
BLACKTOWN RAILWAY STATION,
22 miles from Sydney.

In the County of Cumberland the Bungarribee property may fairly be said to be at the present time one of the best intact country freeholds, distant only 22 miles from Sydney, lying between the Western-road and the Western Railway line, and surrounded by first-class country estates, it possesses advantages of an exceptional character. For years the greatest care has been exercised, and a large sum of money expended by the owner in keeping it in a state of perfect repair. The advantage may be summarised as follows:—

1. IMMENSE AREA OF LAND, 2081 ACRES, with large main-road frontages.
2. A large quantity of VERY VALUABLE YOUNG and FULL-GROWN TIMBER, all the dead timber having been removed from the estate.
3. SECURELY FENCED, and PROVISION MADE for a PLENTIFUL SUPPLY of WATER.
4. ELEVATED and UNDULATING COUNTRY, fit for VINEYARDS, ORCHARDS, or GRAIN GROWING, with pretty slopes, from which may be commanded extensive and varied views, including the Blue Mountains as far as the Zigzag and Kurrajong and the intervening country.
5. A CAPITAL HOMESTEAD, a large number of outbuildings, large paddocks, and good permanent improvements.

The PROSPECTIVE VALUE of BUNGARRIBEE is very large it being so close to the PROSPECT RESERVOIR,
where hundreds of hands are likely to be employed; and in this age of subdivision of country estates, if BUNGARRIBEE were subdivided a much larger return would be obtained than by sale in one line.
BUNGARRIBEE is in the market for POSITIVE SALE, and the AUCTIONEERS feel confident that an inspection of the property will more than bear out anything that has been stated in this advertisement.
A rough plan may be seen at the Rooms, and further particulars obtained on application.

NORTHERN TERRITORY OF SOUTH AUSTRALIA. A compact BLOCK of COUNTRY in N. T., 1050 miles, situated about 30 miles from the Finke River and about 45 miles in direct line S.W. of Chamber's Pillar, adjoining Messrs. Grant and Stokes's stocked runs on the Finke. The country is watered by several limestone springs, one of which is the starting point of the run. These springs have never been known to fail in the longest drought. A chain of large clay pans, some of them two and three miles in circumference, runs through the block, carrying water for a considerable time after ordinary summer rain. The grazing capabilities of the run have been pronounced by competent judges to be as good as anything in the district, consisting of low bald hills and undulating country, thickly covered with grass and herbage, all the flats well clothed with cotton and saltbush; also large grassy mulga flats, providing shelter for stock, and ample supply of timber for fencing and building purposes. The Fridunda spring, the starting point of the block, has been slightly opened, and the supply of water increased with every stroke of the pick in the limestone stock. For price and further particulars apply HORE and WARBURTON, Land Agents, Adelaide.

MESSRS. NICHOLSON and CO. are pleased to announce that they have been enabled to secure the SOLE AGENCY for AUSTRALIA and NEW ZEALAND for this celebrated manufacture of Pianos, as the subjoined will show:—

"Messrs. Nicholson and Co., Melbourne.

"Gentlemen,—I have great pleasure in acceding to your request by appointing your firm, "NICHOLSON and CO., "As my "SOLE AGENTS for the whole of Australia, Tasmania, and New Zealand, for my manufacture of Pianos.

"I am, gentlemen,
"Very truly yours,
(Signed) "CARL RONISCH."

REGULAR monthly shipments of these fine instruments are being received by Messrs. Nicholson and Co., who respectfully invite inspection, particularly of the RONISCH UPRIGHT GRAND, the largest upright piano manufactured. It is of splendid construction, magnificently finished, iron-framed, overstrung (double oblique), is trichord, and 7 octaves in compass. Cased in handsome Italian walnut, or ebonised and gold engraved in the most chaste and exquisite manner. Valuable improvements have been made in all the models, and the RONISCH PIANO now takes its proper position as ONE OF THE FIRST MADE INSTRUMENTS IN THE WORLD. THE RONISCH PIANO CANNOT BE EXCELLED, IF EVEN EQUALLED. ALL THE MODELS CONSTANTLY KEPT IN STOCK.

IN CONNECTION with the above Messrs NICHOLSON and CO. desire to CAUTION THE PUBLIC against a class of instrument now being imported, and purporting to be manufactured by Ronisch. These instruments are labelled CARL RENISCH, Stuttgart, or some similar name and place. Messrs. N. and Co. have satisfied themselves that there is NO SUCH MAKER, either in Stuttgart or any other part of Germany, save and excepting the well-known firm of CARL RONISCH, DRESDEN, and that any piano or pianos which are labelled otherwise than Carl Ronisch, Dresden, or the simple name "RONISCH," are not genuine.

MESSRS. NICHOLSON and CO. are in possession of a POWER OF ATTORNEY from Mr. Ronisch, giving them full authority to protect his interests by PROSECUTING ANY INDIVIDUAL OR INDIVIDUALS who may be found offering for sale Pianos under the name of Rönisch or Renisch, unless the Instrument or Instruments are of the genuine manufacture of Carl Rönisch, of Dresden. AS WILL BE SEEN more articles are obtainable for the same amounts of money, COMFORT and ECONOMY have been carefully studied, and taking as example the lists already published, it is questionable indeed if the various amounts could be more carefully or judiciously spent.

LONG and FAITHFUL SERVICE is recognized sometimes, though often forgotten when not needed. But those who are well served during nearly a fifth of a century by a faithful little friend do not consult their interests by turning their backs on those who have done so well. This is evidently the case with so many of those really sensible ladies, who, having had a WILCOX and GIBBS' MACHINE for so many years, working with such satisfaction, that in seeking for another try the W. and G. AUTOMATIC SILENT, which has all the old good points, with some wonderful improvements in addition.
